Lancaster Farming

VOL. 30 No. 47 | Four Sections | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, September 28, 1985 | $7.50 per Year

The All American — the best of the best

A new dairy princess, and the best examples of all the dairy breeds...that's what the All American Dairy Show has come to mean to the state, and even to the Northeast. For Lancaster Farming's exclusive same-week coverage of this exciting event, review pages A22 to A24. For coverage of the coronation of Elizabeth Heald of Centre County as Pennsylvania's 1985 Dairy Princess, turn to page B14.

Extension agents from across U.S. meet in Hershey

HERSHEY — More than 1,000 county agricultural agents are converging on this central Pennsylvania resort for the 70th annual meeting of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

The convention, which opens Sunday and continues until Thursday, was four years in the making, according to Lancaster County extension agents Glenn Shirk and Jay Irwin.

In addition to hearing a variety of high-level speakers, the agents will have the opportunity to learn about central Pennsylvania agriculture by participating in some of the 20 tours that have been scheduled by planners of the event.

The tours, which will be hosted by agents from the respective counties, include a total of 84 stops in ten counties.

The convention may well be the largest in the organization's history, despite the fall date, which, it was thought, would deter families with children from attending, said Shirk,

Instead, many agents and their families have registered, pushing total attendance well above 2,000 and requiring spillover accomodations at a variety of hotels and motels throughout the area.

Speakers for the event include Governor Dick Thornburgh and USDA officials like Dr. Mary Nell Greenwood, Administrator of the Extension Service, and Richard Rankin, Deputy Administrator for Management. Other speakers include:

- Charles M. Kittrell, executive vice president of Phillips Petroleum Co.
- Bryce Jordan, president of Penn State University
- Russell G. Mawby, chairman of the board and executive officer of the W.K. Kellogg Foundation
- Jim Meston, Director of Human Resources, Westinghouse Headquarters

In addition to the formal sessions and official business, the convention will also feature a full slate of "professional improvement sessions," on a variety of topics, including farm income, rural development, urban programs, youth activities and administrative management and public relations

Sites on the tours include agricultural highlights like the Sperry-New Holland Assembly Site, in New Holland; the Em-Tran embryo transfer facility in Elizabethtown; Atlantic Breeders Cooperative in Lancaster; Pennfield's feed and poultry operations, Rodale Organic Farm; and the extremely modern Frey Dairy Farm near Columbia.

Other tours include locations of general interest, like Seltzer's Lebanon bologna plant, San Giorgio's pasta plant, Utz's Potato Chips factory, the Betty Groff Farm and Three Mile Island nuclear power plant.

The Hershey Lodge and Convention Center, the site of next week's convention of county extension agents.

NOW IS THE TIME

By Jay Irwin

Lancaster County Agriculture Agent
Phone 717-394-6851

To Prepare For Wheat Planting

Wheat is an important crop in many of our farming programs and the selection of good seed will result in a better crop next year. Due to some infection of Scab and Powdery Mildew in our winter wheat last summer, growers should be extra careful this fall by planting clean seed. Certified seed would be free of these problems. If you are planning to use home grown seed, then do an extra good job of cleaning and treating. Vitavax 200 is a recommended fungicide for seed treatment. The fly-free date is either after the first killing frost or in Southeastern Pennsylvania, Oct. 10

Just a few reminders on planting wheat - it should not be planted in the same field more often than once every five years; this time period will reduce the fungus carryover in the soil. Plow the fields as early as you can, then disc and harrow to kill as many weeds as possible. It's also a good idea to harrow the field thoroughly the day of seeding

To Prevent Silo Fires

This year's good growing conditions followed by several weeks of dry weather could cause a higher than usual amount of silo gas to be given off by this year's corn silage. One of these gases is a yellowish-brown, nitrogen dioxide gas, which is toxic to breathe.

Another gas is methane, which is very combustible. Both are heavier than air, and can accumulate in silo chutes and feed rooms. A single spark can ignite the methane, which in turn can ignite accumulations of dried chaff in the silo chute. The smoldering chaff can burn its way thourgh wooden doors and into the silage. Our recommendations are to ventilate the chute and feed room well, using fans as needed, but being careful of any sparks. Keep the silo free of any debris. When working around the silo, use the buddy system, and contact your physician immediately upon exposure to these gases.

CAUTION: DO NOT use any water on a silo fire; this could cause an explosion - call your fire company

To Help Cows Adjust

During this time of the year, cows are subjected to many stresses They need all the help they can get from you to adjust to new feeding programs, changing weather and indoor confinement. Feeding changes should be made gradually, and guided by a forage testing program.

Bringing cows in from the pasture and confining them to concrete all day long can be a severe stress An earthen exercise lot will do a lot for these cows. Good stall maintenance can also increase their comfort When cows are kept in confinement, we have the obligation of providing proper ventilation. This is especially critical during fall and spring when the weather can change quite drastically and quite suddenly.

It is a good idea to work closely with your veterinarian to develop a good health program for your herd.

To Protect Plants For The Winter

Plants with shallow roots such as azaleas, rhododendrons, mountain laurel and flowering dogwood need frequent watering. And it's a good idea to continue watering these plants on a regular basis until the ground freezes this fall

A shallow-rooted plant has most of its room system in the upper three to five inches of soil. Since this is the first layer to dry out, it's very important that these plants receive at least an inch of water each week through the season.

Also, the more water your plants can take up before the ground freezes, the better they will withstand the severe winter conditions Keep in mind that once the ground does freeze, there will be no free water for the plants to take up But even though the ground is frozen, the parts of the plant above the ground will continue to lose water.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

SUPERHUMAN
September 29, 1985

Background Scripture:
Ephesians 4:17 through 5:20.
Devotional Reading:
Ephesians 5:3-20.

Nothing is more hurtful to the image of Christianity than the naive failure to realize that Christians are human beings and therefore subject to the same frailties, temptations, experiences of failure that are common to the whole human race. Anyone who has ever read the epistles of Paul and the Book of Acts must realize that the earliest Christians were human beings, not cardboard saints. Paul and Peter had some pointed conflicts; the church at Corinth was divided into factions; immorality in various churches brought strong admonitions and protests from some of the apostles, and so on There's an old cliche about not staying away from church because it's filled with hypocrites, for there's always room for one more! Yes, there's lots of room for hypocrisy in the church and lots of other sins and sinners as well. As someone has said, the Church is not a club for saints, but a school for sinners.

YOUR OLD NATURE

At the same time we must acknowledge the human nature that is the common lot of all of us, we are called also to improve considerably upon our human nature. Yes, we are all sinners and there is no one truly righteous, but the writer of Ephesians also calls us to "Put off your old nature which belongs to your former manner of life..." (4:23). If we are followers of Christ, we are called to give up our old ways of living "and put on the new nature."

What does that mean? Ephesians gives us some clear indications: avoid falsehood ... not let the sun go down on your anger," do not steal, talk evilly, avoid "all bitterness and wrath and anger and clamor and slander."

But it is not enough to give up the "old nature," Ephesians calls us to "put on the new nature, created after the likeness of God..." or as the Jerusalem Bible puts it, "put on the new self." And the new self is specified in being "kind to one another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, as God in Christ forgave you."

REVOLUTION!

The Jerusalem Bible helps us to understand that what is called for here is not just a few band aids "Your mind must be renewed by a spiritual revolution so that you can put on the new self" (4:23,24). A spiritual revolution! That's what's needed in many of us. Too often I assume that I need to make a few little changes here and there: a little more love, a little more faith, a smidgen more of kindness, and so on.

But that isn't what God wants of me, I'm afraid. What he wants–and I'm so reluctant to let him have–is a revolution, a spiritual revolution that will enable me, not to play church, but "walk in love, as Christ loved us and gave himself for us..."

Yes, we are human. But Christ calls us to be more than human–as he was and is.

USDA protects plant varieties

WASHINGTON – The U.S. Department of Agriculture has issued certificates of protection for 15 new varieties of pea, perennial ryegrass, pumpkin, soybean, tomato, and wheat.

Kenneth H. Evans, an official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said developers of the newly protected varieties will have the exclusive right to reproduce their products in the United States for 18 years. USDA grants certificates of protection after a review of the breeders' records and claims that each new variety is novel, uniform and stable.

The following varieties have been issued certificates of protection:

– the Ricardo variety of pea, developed by Deveco-Handeslraad, Rotterdam, Holland;

– the Cowboy variety of perennial ryegrass, developed by Pure-Seed Testing, Inc., Hubbard, Oreg.;

– the Bushkin pumpkin variety, developed by W. Atlee Burpee Company, Warminster, Pa.;

– the RA-452 and RA-405 varieties of soybean, developed by Rohm and Haas Seeds, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.; the Epps variety of soybean, developed by the University of Tennessee Agricultural Experiment Station, Knoxville, Tenn.;

– the Indiana 812 variety of tomato, developed by Purdue University Agricultural Experiment Station, West Lafayette, Ind.;

– the Marshall variety of wheat, developed by Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station, St. Paul, Minn.; the Erik, Mustang, Magnum, Wrangler, Ram, Blazer and Meggie wheat varieties, developed by Nickerson American Plant Breeders, Inc., Mission, Kan.;

Certificates of protection for Ricardo pea, Epps soybean, and Erik, Magnum, Mustang, Wrangler, Ram, Blazer, Meggie, and Marshall wheat varieties all were issued under Title V of the Plant Variety and Protection Act. Seeds of these varieties may be sold by variety name only as a class of certified seed.

SQUEEZE MORE PROFIT OUT OF YOUR EMPLOYEES.

Feed them BOSPRO.® From the people at Borden.

BOSPRO is a cost-efficient feed supplement for dairy cows that can increase both the quantity and the quality of the milk they produce.

In test herds, BOSPRO was shown to increase milk production on average 5% after 60 days of use. And just as importantly, it increased the amount of butterfat and protein and decreased the somatic cell count.

So you get more milk out of your cows. And better milk.

Best of all, BOSPRO can pay for itself 10 times over.

If you're a businessman who wants to milk every ounce of profit from your employees, ask your local feed dealer about BOSPRO. Or just call Borden at 1-800-323-0877.

Hybrex Hybrid Wheat are bringing home championship yields as high as 100 bushels per acre.

Twelve years of intense research have created a line of thoroughbreds unlike any other seed wheat in the world The technology is based on a chemical hybridizing agent designed to produce the most advanced wheat hybrids in the shortest possible time

The results? That extra hybrid vigor once available only in seed corn Increased tillering, which dramatically reduces seeding rates (up to 50% in some tests) Greater straw strength And added tolerance to ward off disease

Bred for the American wheat farmer of the 80's, Hybrex hybrids respond wholeheartedly to high management techniques

In a university trial in Maryland, a Hybrex hybrid easily outdistanced a field of 23 popular varietals with 127 bushels per acre

And we're currently conducting trials with customers in Pennsylvania and Maryland that are showing outstanding results. Like these farmers, with good crop management, you should significantly surpass your present varietal yield record, and boost profits substantially

526

As proven in tests, 526 is one of the most winterhardy varieties on the market. It also features outstanding resistance to Bacterial Wilt and good resistance to Fusarium Wilt. 526 produces impressive yields throughout this area and, since the first cutting is a bit later than with 531 or 532, the harvest load can be easily spread.

531

With its ability to tolerate Anthracnose infestations and fight off Fusarium Wilt and Bacterial Wilt, 531 is quickly becoming a favorite in areas where these diseases are a problem. It produces a first cutting early and the fine stemmed, leafy plants bounce back fast after harvest — providing ton after ton of high quality forage.

532

532 establishes a stand quickly and its fast regrowth can mean an extra cutting each season. Strong resistance to Bacterial Wilt and Fusarium Wilt, along with very good field tolerance against Phytophthora Root Rot, all go into making 532 one tough, winterhardy alfalfa variety.

Sam Yoder retains E. National Milking Shorthorn title

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — Judge William Etgen of Blacksburg, Va., couldn't say enough about Pinesedge Alfair Carleen.

"You just look at her and you see milk," Etgen said, after naming the eight-year-old grand champion female of the Eastern National Milking Shorthorn Show held at the All-American on Tuesday. "She'd look good no matter what color she was," Etgen added.

Owned and exhibited by veteran Milking Shorthorn breeder Sam Yoder of Pinesedge Farm, Shoemakersville, Colleen came to the All-American with an impressive array of 1985 awards already in the trophy case. Getting an early start, she took grand champion honors at the Farm Show in January, then went all the way to the top in both the Maryland State Fair and the recent Eastern States Exposition, known as "The Big E."

"She's been champion at all four shows she's been to (this year)," said Yoder, adding that he considered himself fortunate to be able to win the All-American. "There were a lot of good cows in the show and she's been milking since early January, so she wasn't in full bloom."

Nevertheless, Carleen blossomed just enough to defeat Elm Noll Setter Ann, the senior two-year-old shown by Cole Springs Farm of Salisbury, Mass.

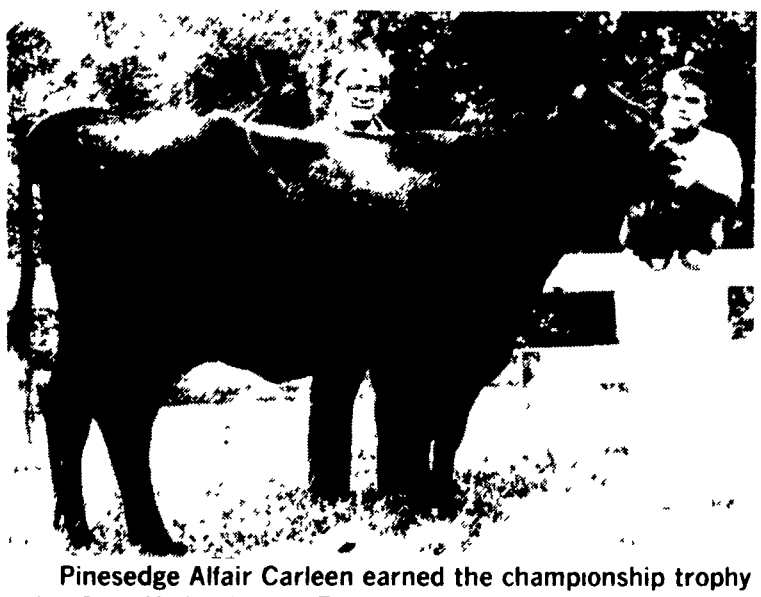
Sired by Pinesedge Apollo, Carleen produced over 16,000 lbs. milk with a 4.4 test as a five-year-old. In addition to taking both the senior and grand championships, Carleen also claimed best milking female and best udder honors.

And for yet another standout performance at the Eastern National, Sam Yoder was named premier breeder.

The Milking Shorthorn bull competition belonged to Three Springs Farm of Newville, who took both grand champion and reserve honors with a pair of September 1984 bull calves. Named champion and reserve were Three Springs Dusty and Three Springs Jake, both Kingsdale Aristocrat sons.

Premier exhibitor honors went to the L. Herbert York family of Sandy River Farms, Farmington, Maine.

Led by Yoder, Pennsylvania emerged victorious in the state herd competition, with entries from New York, the New England states, Ohio and Oklahoma vying for top honors.



Pinesedge Alfair Carleen earned the championship trophy for Sam Yoder in the Eastern National Milking Shorthorn Show. At halter is Pinesedge herdsman Roy Miller

Waverly's winning streak in the championship was broken only by Heron Run Farms, owned by Max Spann of Washington, N.J. Heron Run exhibited junior yearling Valley Stream Title Lou 9S to the reserve junior championship. This JFD Title daughter was purchased from John White & Son of Canada.

Heron Run claimed its second reserve champion in only its second year of showing. They also exhibited the second place dairy herd.

Also presenting a strong showing was Spring Valley Farm of Westminster, Md. This herd exhibited first and second place in the best three females competition and joined other Maryland exhibitors in winning first-place state herd.

The premier sire of the show was Favorite Saint.

Indiana cow top All-American Guernsey

HARRISBURG — A descendant of the famous Chedco line of Berlin, MA captured the top honors Wednesday in the 1985 National Guernsey Show at the All American Dairy Show at the Farm Show complex.

Chedco TH Maxine, owned by Elm Spring Farm of Lynn, IN, won the 5-year-old and over class before capturing the grand and senior championships.

She also won the best udder award in the age class and the total performance award.

Maxine has milked 25,800 pounds with 1,735 pounds of butterfat in 305 days, according to her owner, David Alexander. The butterfat total, he said, was one of the highest ever recorded for the breed.

Alexander purchased the grand champion animal from Chedco in 1982, he said. Her sire was Clovelly Top Hornet and her dam was Chedco Darimost Maxine.

Spring Walk Farm won the top herd awards, capturing premier exhibitor, premier breeder, best three females and dairy herd awards.

Spring Walk Hornets Pearl, the Big Prairie, OH farm's top animal, won the reserve senior and reserve grand championship awards, and also was named best milking female.

Also sired by Clovelly Top Hornet, the reserve grand champion recorded 16,810 pounds of milk in a 305-day lactation. Her dam was Spring Walk Fayvors Lena.

In the National Junior Guernsey Show, Dutch Mill Fernells Betty from Four Winds Farm of Hartland, WI won the grand championship, while Messix's MC Lass of Hopestead and Pemperton Farms in Chestertown, MD was the reserve champion.

Top Acres steals E. National Brown Swiss Show

BY JACK HUBLEY

HARRISBURG — Since 1975, Wayne Sliker has maintained an almost unbroken winning streak in the All-American's Eastern National Brown Swiss Show. The only year that Sliker's Top Acres Farm failed to win the show in the past decade was 1980.

Maybe that was because Sliker was busy exhibiting elsewhere and couldn't make it to the All-American.

But Top Acres cattle were indeed in attendance once again this year, and judge Jim Armbruster, herd coordinator at the University of Wisconsin, maintained the tradition by putting Top Acres females in both the grand champion and reserve positions.

For his champion, Armbruster selected Rockwin Titan Mary, his senior champion and first-place five year old sired by Lar-Le Stretch Titan, the show's premier sire. "This is the kind of a cow that breeders should be looking for," remarked Armbruster, admiring what he judged to be an "extreme dairy Brown Swiss cow."

Chosen as last year's All-American grand champ, Mary posted production records of 19,000 lbs. milk and 796 lbs. fat as a three year old.

Top Acres' reserve champion was three-year-old Top Acres Stretchy Lynn-ET, a Welcome In Stretch daughter that took reserve senior champion honors as well.

Wayne Sliker's list of show honors included both the premier exhibitor and premier breeder awards.

A Top Acres bull, a senior yearling named Top Acres Telstar Stir-ET, copped the grand champion bull title, as well.

At reserve in the bull show was Allis Acres Justin, a senior yearling exhibited by Faye Allis of Conway, Mass.

And a Top Acres cow, Alfalfa Meadows Sueann, placed first in Total Performance competition, with 27,000 lbs. milk and 1,200 lbs. fat in her most recent lactation.

Predictably, Sliker's outstanding show performance earned the St. Paris, Ohio farmer both the premier breeder and premier exhibitor awards.

"This was my third time judging the Eastern National Brown Swiss Show, and each time I come back the quality has improved," concluded Armbruster after placing the field of more than 160 cows.

LAMPETER — Despite cloudy skies threatening rain from Hurricane Gloria, four breed champions were named during the Lampeter Fair dairy show Thursday afternoon before the deluge began.

A shower of ribbons went to Holstein exhibitor Sandy Thomas, who claimed the senior and grand championships with Dreamstreet Sheik Daphne-ET, a three-year-old excellent Astronaut daughter.

Mrs. Thomas said she purchased her champion from Mervin Howe and Sons, Ontario, in January. Daphne, who was bred by Dreamstreet Holsteins of New York, gave 17,000 pounds milk and 800 pounds fat on her first test.

Mrs. Thomas owns several Holsteins which she keeps on the farm of her father, J. Mowrey Frey of Willow Street.

Despite her cow's outstanding pedigree, Mrs Thomas said she didn't come to the show expecting to win. "I was surprised. I really didn't know how it would turn out," she said.

The reserve championship went to Roger Mills, Lancaster, and his five-year-old Spring-Bell Wapa Mona. Classified VG-88, she was last year's Lampeter Fair champion.

After the show, Roger's son Daryl said they were pleased that their homebred entry did so well again this year. "She's just about dry, so we didn't expect her to do as well as she did," he said.

The Mills milk about 100 head of registered Holsteins at their Spring Bell Farms.

In the Ayrshire show, 13-year-old Max Brommer bested his only competitor, Dee Martin, for the junior and grand championships. The son of Edward and Marilyn Brommer, Quarryville, he won the show with his homebred senior calf.

The Swift Middle School student said he has had several champions at the Lampeter Fair during his six-year 4-H career.

The reserve junior and reserve grand championships went to Dee Martin and her junior heifer calf.

Janice Garber and her two-year-old Willows Big Tex Velvet topped the Guernsey show, while Danean Charles, the only other competitor, claimed the reserve senior and reserve grand championships

The daughter of Kenneth and Thelma Garber, Willow Street, Janice and her homebred entry have won the Guernsey show at the fair for the past two years. The pair has also claimed the grand championship at the district 4-H show for the past two years and recently placed third at the state show.

Janice, 15, is a sophomore at Lampeter Strasburg High School.

A brother and sister from Lancaster R6 were the sole contenders in the Jersey show. Jere Shertzer, 16, showed his two-year-old Pine Mountain Chocolate Ashley to the senior and grand championships, while sister, Jennifer, settled for the junior championship.

The son of Roy and Ruth Shertzer, Jere has had a number of fair championships during his eight years in 4-H. Earlier this year, Jere claimed second place at the district 4-H show with Ashley, who also took a third at the national show last year.

The Shertzers said it was their grandfather, Paul Herr, who got them interested in raising Jerseys, and they keep their cows at his farm once they have freshened "I've enjoyed raising them," Jere said.

Below are the top three placings in each division

'Dark horse' steer tops soggy baby beef show

Ephrata Fair

BY JACK HUBLEY

EPHRATA — Farmers weren't about to complain about the much needed rain that arrived in Lancaster County on Thursday night. But all who attended the Ephrata Fair's 4-H and FFA Baby Beef show agreed that an hour's respite from the soaker that began as a fine drizzle at the beginning of the show would have been nice

Nevertheless, it was business as usual for exhibitors and steers alike as show judge Cheryl Fairbairn, a Chester County Extension agent, sorted soggy steers in her quest for the show's top beef.

In the end it was Bubba, the show's first-place heavyweight, that caught Fairbairn's eye. Owned by Nichole High, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Larry High of Lititz, the 1,230-pound Chianina-Angus turned out to be the "dark horse" steer of Nichole's two show prospects

An ex-Garden Spot steer showman, Larry High admits that he was less than impressed with Bubba ever since the family purchased the steer from West Virginia's McQueen Farms at a Virginia club calf sale.

"Up until about two months ago we were really disappointed with the steer," said Larry. "It was the cheapest steer we ever bought, and if Nicki would have been willing to part with it, I probably would have sold it."

Fortunately for the High family, fathers are often easily swayed by 12-year-old daughters. 'He's my favorite steer and I didn't want to get rid of him," said Nichole If things go well, she hopes to be parading Bubba in the Farm Show arena come January

As for Nichole's other steer, the purebred Angus has already chalked up champion titles in the Pa Angus Breeders Show earlier this summer, and the more recent New Jersey Preview Show Garden Spot eighth grader Jody Weaver added a second Ephrata reserve champion trophy to her collection. The daughter of Mr and Mrs Larry Weaver of New Holland, Jody bought her Chianina-Angus steer from M.T McIntyre of Virginia.

'I also showed him at York (Fair) where he stood at the bottom," said Jody, pointing out that her 1,140-pound middleweight has seen "both ends" while on this year's beef show circuit. The steer was also named champion crossbred at the New Jersey Preview Show.

(Turn to Page A35)

Nichole High demonstrates that an umbrella was just as essential as a show stick at Ephrata's Baby Beef show on Thursday night. Her Chianina-Angus cross took championship honors.

In the Guernsey show, Janice Garber, left, showed the champion and Danean Charles had the reserve champ

Neighboring Bedford and Somerset teams claim dairy judging titles

HARRISBURG — The Northern Bedford FFA and Somerset County 4-H dairy judging teams displayed their judging expertise on Tuesday. The teams won first-place honors during the Pennsylvania 4-H and FFA Dairy Judging Forum, held at the Farm Show Complex as part of the week-long All-American Dairy Show.

Members of the first-place Northern Bedford FFA team included Dan Over, Lincoln Ritchey, Shawn Wyles, and Ross Hershberger. Wyles and Hershberger placed seventh and eighth, respectively, in the individual FFA placings.

Rounding out the top five FFA teams were: 2. Solanco; 3. Lower Dauphin; 4. Shippensburg; and 5. Elizabethtown.

Finishing first in individual FFA competition was Tom McCauley of Elizabethtown. Other individual placings were: 2. Kay Fessler, Conrad Weiser; 3. Michelle Dougherty, Apple City; 4. In 4-H dairy judging competition, Somerset County garnered enough points for a first-place win. Making up the winning team were: Paul Carr, Ryan Weimer, Matthew Brown, and Matthew Well. Weimer was fourth in individual scores, while Carr placed seventh and Brown placed tenth.

Also placing among the top five 4-H teams were: 2. Berks; 3. Lebanon; 4. Juniata; and 5. Cumberland.

Cumberland countian Michelle Cornman had the highest individual 4-H score. Also in the top ten were: 2. Dale Weaver, Lebanon; 3. Cathy Ohlinger, Berks; 4. Weimer; 5. Jeffrey Kauffman, Juniata; 6. Chris Harding, Lebanon; 7. Carr; 8. Michelle Christman, Berks; 9. James Younker, Berks; and 10. Brown.

Bill would strengthen Apple Board

HARRISBURG — A bill to strengthen powers of the Apple Marketing Board under the Agricultural Commodities Marketing Act has been introduced by state Rep. John H. Broujos, a Democrat serving parts of Adams, Cumberland and York Counties.

The bill would strengthen control over programming, personnel, and contracts.

The Pennsylvania Apple Growers voted during the summer not to participate in the program of marketing that had been in effect for 17 years.

Representative Kenneth Cole (D-91), whose Adams County district is a large fruit growing area, is a co-sponsor.

Mc Ginnis wins Maryland state conservation Award

ANNAPOLIS – One of Baltimore County's most outstanding farmers, John McGinnis, has been selected as a State Conservation Award Winner.

Farmers and ranchers from 49 states throughout the country have been selected by the National Soil and Water Conservation awards program for their outstanding conservation achievement in the protection of America's agricultural resource base.

McGinnis, who runs a 1,100 acre family-owned grain operation, was one of the first in his area to plant no-till corn when a planter became available in his area in 1969. In addition to his early no-till practices, McGinnis has made use of crop rotations, waterways, contour and field strips, pasture and hayland management, crop residue use, diversions, an animal waste facility, and other conservation practices. John McGinnis is an associate supervisor with the Baltimore County Soil Conservation District and a member of the ASCS Committee, Baltimore County.

The conservation achievements of the State nominees will be reviewed and ten national finalists will be selected. The National Finalists and their wives will receive an expense-paid trip to attend the National Awards Ceremony in Texas on October 18

Three national winners will be selected later this year and each will receive a $1,000 cash award.

The National Endowment for Soil and Water Conservation, sponsors of the awards program, is a non-profit, privately funded, non-political organization dedicated to conserving the nation's national resources and fostering a sense of stewardship for the land by involving all Americans

Ideal For Baling Corn Stalks!

M&W ROUND BALING SYSTEM

FARMING'S FINEST ROUND BALING SYSTEM

M&W balers were engineered without belts or multiple rollers. M&W balers form bales using an endless slatted steel chain conveyor that rolls, forms and presses the hay inside a closed chamber. The frequent breakage and time consuming replacement of belts is eliminated. This simple design runs quieter and cleaner with one-third fewer parts than most conventional round balers.

The enclosed fixed cavity holds in leaves and seeds, reducing crop losses experienced with "open chamber" style balers. Even during twine wrapping, where many balers suffer additional crop loss, M&W experiences almost none. M&W's closed bale chamber also eliminates noise and dust problems. M&W balers utilize four rows of rotating double-spring tines that pick up the crop cleanly. Proper working height of the pick-up is easily pre-set with an adjustment pin.

Two Valiants bring $40,000 bids at All American Sale

BY WENDY WEHR

HARRISBURG — Numbers one and two quickly became numbers two and one as the final bids were posted. Two Valiant daughters commanded $40,000 and $41,000 on Thursday evening to become the top consignments at the annual All-American Sale.

Second through the sale ring, but first in money, was Mun-Cre Valiant Misty, a VG-86 daughter of Mun-Cre Elevation Misty. This choice consignment came from Lester Poust, of Mun-Cre Farms, Muncy, and was purchased by the Valiant Misty Syndicate, in care of Philip Stoecklin of Greenville, Illinois, for $41,000.

Part of a package, Misty went with six pregnancies by Bova, due Feb. 20, and a guaranteed six transferable embryos.

High on numbers as well as price, the four-year-old Misty has an index topping +1600M and +$200. Her first lactation record exceeded 26,000 pounds milk and 900 of fat in 365 days.

Scored VG-86 herself, Misty is out of an Ex-92, 2E, GMD dam with a top production record of 36,605 of 4.2 milk and an impressive 1532 of fat.

First through the sale ring, yet following close on Misty's hooves for the top bid, was Windemere Danice Valiant, consigned by James V. Kemp, Jerusalem, Ohio. She was purchased by Rossetti Bruno of Cormdale Farms, Ontario, Canada, for $40,000.

Selling open but with a guarantee of ten transferable embryos, Danice is scored VG-88 and boasts a 25,720 pound milk record and an index of +1050M and +$165.

She is out of Windemere Bootmaker Dior, an Ex-92 dam with a 346-day record to 27,570 pounds milk and 917 of fat, and an Elevation granddam with a fat record over 1000.

In addition to the two high selling animals, four other consignments brought bids over $20,000. They were:

•O'Pinta-Lane Ford Niki, consigned by Ben S. Beiler and Tim Barlow, Cochranville, and purchased by the Pinta-Lane Niki Syndicate, Narvon, for $26,000;

•Walebe Shey-Land Roxy, consigned by George and Paul Sheypuk, Jermyn, and purchased by Cardinal Holsteins, Inc., Christiansburg, Va., for $22,000;

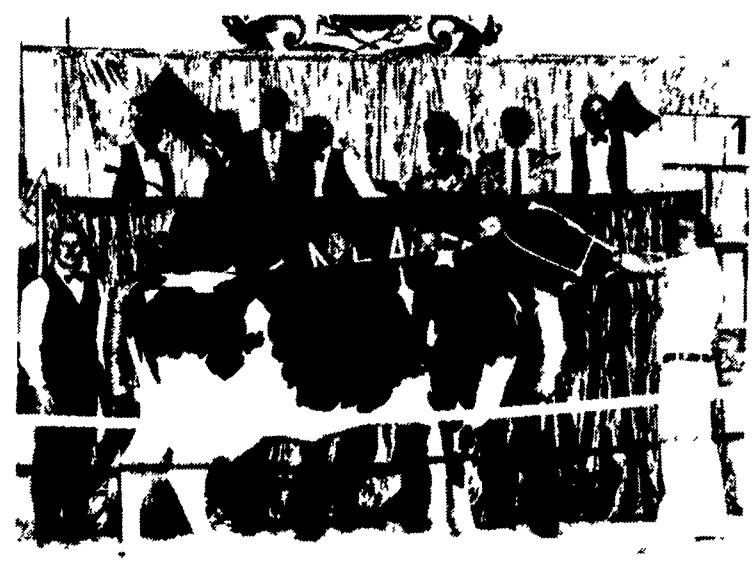
Sale average for the evening was $7,729 on 44 head, about $300 over last year's All American Sale average.

Mun-Cre Valiant Misty commanded the top bid of $41,000 at Thursday evening's All American Sale. An Illinois syndicate purchased the four-year-old.



Windemere Danice Valiant brought a $40,000 bid from buyer Rossetti Bruno, of Ontario, Canada.

Bids lower, but still strong, at Sulbra Sell-A-Bration

BY BARBARA MILLER
Staff Correspondent

TROY — The weather was excellent and the crowd was large, but prices at this year's Sulbra Sell-A-Bration Sale at Troy declined sharply from those of previous years.

The sale average was $1,620 for the 23 mature cows sold and $1,220 for the 27 bred heifers and yearlings auctioned. Last year's overall sale average was known to be much higher, although exact figures were unavailable.

Dave Moon, sale chairman, attributed the low prices this year to poor economic conditions within the farming community and to a change in strategy by sale planners.

Last year the top priced cow, a flush cow with embryos, was sold to a syndicate for $43,000. This year, according to Moon, sale planners made an effort to consign less exotic fare.

"The bulk of the sale this year," Moon said "was made up of cattle that were good sound working cattle–ones that dairymen could purchase, take home and use under today's conditions."

Added association president Mrs. Richard Champluvier, "we tried this year to respond to the needs of local buyers." The sale, for the most part, drew buyers from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, while last year's event drew purchasers from states as distant as Vermont and California.

The highest priced animal this year was Will-Pond Sexation Sexy-OC purchased for $3700 by Bill Stoltzfus of Chester County. She was consigned by Robert Adams and Robert Hollister of Montrose, Pa. She classified VG-88 at three years with an excellent mammary and was bred July 17, 1985 to Sweet-Haven Tradition. Her projected DHI record at three years and three months for a 305-day lactation is 28,000 pounds of milk and 1278 pounds of fat. Her cow index stands at t273 and the mature cow deviation is t11926M and t583F. She is a daughter of Ocean-View Sexation whose PDT is plus 1.73.

Mun-cre Pete Priceless-ET, consigned by Lester Poust of Muncy, and Anacres Jemini Val owned by Allen and Lorraine Andrews of Gillett, Pa. tied for second highest price by bringing $3,500 each.

Dick Yule of R.D.#1, Millville and Tom Comstock of Rome, Pa. purchased Poust's Mun-Cre Pete Priceless-ET. Yule said they bought her for the potential she showed and because they liked the cow family behind her.

Mun-Cre Pete Priceless, a two-year-old who freshened August 3, 1985, possesses an outstanding pedigree. On her dam's side are three generations of excellents and one very good. She is a descendant of Poust's "Sugar" line. Butterfat levels of the foregoing dams range from 3.6 to 4.3. Priceless is out of Straight-Pine Elevation Pete who carries a PD t1038M and a PDT of t1.57.

Ray Hoppough of Columbia Crossroads, Pa., buyer of Andacres Jemini Val, said he purchased her because he liked what he had seen of her during visits to the Andrews' farm the past couple of years.

Andacres Jemini Val is excellent 90 at four years with an excellent mammary. At 3-8 in 294 days she had 26,030 pounds of 4.2 percent milk and 1098 of fat (inc.) and was still milking 68 pounds of milk on her last test.

A total of 56 head was sold, including six calves sold with dams which brought the grand total of the sale to $74,825.

The sale was sponsored by the Sulbra Breeders Holstein Club and managed to Gordon Wood Auction Service, Mansfield.

PFU convention slated Nov. 6-8

HERSHEY — The Pennsylvania Farmers Union will hold its 14th Annual Convention at the Hotel Hershey, November 6-8. This year's theme will be "Your Future is Now!"

"Certainly, farmers must get active now if they wish to have any future at all," said P.F.U. Executive Director Chester L. Reed. "Our county Farmers Union groups are meeting this month and during October to elect local officers, choose Convention delegates, and develop policy resolutions. We in Farmers Union have always prided ourselves on the fact that our policy is generated on the local level. We feel this is the only way to truly represent our members."

The Convention will open on November 6 at noon with a keynote address by Cy Carpenter, President of the National Farmers Union. Anyone interested in luncheon tickets may call the P.F.U. state office at 1-800-932-4629.

Governors visit Lancaster County

Three governors demonstrated their support for the Chesapeake Bay program on Sept. 20, taking part in an all-day tour that spanned three states.

World Dairy Expo announces Thomson award

MADISON, Wis. - In 1985, World Dairy Expo will present the first A C. "Whitie" Thomson Memorial Award. Presented by the Thomson family, the award will be given annually to the herdsman/showman who has exhibited exemplary leadership and sportsmanship throughout this fall's show.

The recipient will be selected by an anonymous panel of judges who will be at the show for its duration to observe potential candidates.

Thomson, who died February 1, 1985, will long be remembered as a nationally recognized Holstein breeder, leader, auctioneer and judge A true professional, the above described award is most fitting to honor Mr. Thomson.

The award winner will be announced near the close of World Dairy Expo with the presentation being made at one of the breed shows or during the ceremonies surrounding the selection of World Dairy Expo's Supreme Champion on Sunday, Oct. 6th.

This year's World Dairy Expo is set for October 2-6, at the Dane County Exposition Center in Madison, Wis. A full array of programs has been planned for the entire dairy family

More information on the show may be obtained by contacting World Dairy Expo, 2135 Rimrock Road, Madison, Wis 53713 or by calling 608/251-3976

Denver brothers win Ephrata hog honors

EPHRATA — It was only their second year of showing.

But the Martin brothers from Denver made up for their lack of experience with some impressive livestock, to capture several of the top awards in the Junior Market Hog Show at the Ephrata Fair Tuesday.

The younger of the two, 15-year-old Kevin, walked away with the championship trophy, while his 16-year-old brother Anthony, copped the lightweight trophy at the show.

Sons of Mr. and Mrs. John Martin, the brothers are members of the Cloister FFA at Ephrata High School

The judge for the show, Lebanon County Extension Agent Kenneth Winebark, described the brothers' winning 224-pound cross-breed DeKalb as "a really productive hog, a heavy muscled gilt"

"She's the kind of market hog that will keep us in the hog business," Winebark added.

The brothers picked their eight entries in the show from their parents' breeding herd of 300 sows.

The reserve championship went to Laura Folker, the 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Folker.

The 55 hogs entered in the show were slated to be sold at auction Thursday evening.

Championship trophies were donated by Gehman's Feed Mill, Denver.

Bedell vows to continue fight for a wheat vote

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Berkley Bedell, D-Iowa, has said he would continue to fight to hold his referendum plan in the Farm Bill despite President Reagan's reported threat to veto the bill if it contained that provision.

"The President's veto threat makes our job that much harder, but we're still going to fight for all we're worth to hold the referendum plan in the bill," Bedell said.

According to several published reports, President Reagan told Republican congressional leaders Tuesday that he would veto any farm bill that allows farmers to vote on a program to increase loan rates and curb production. The referendum provision is called the Bedell Plan.

If 60 percent of the farmers voting in the referendum approved the program, farmers could agree to limit their production in return for the opportunity to sell feed grains or wheat for domestic consumption at higher prices. Farmers who choose not to participate in the program could feed their grain to their livestock or sell it overseas. The Bedell plan is included in the House Farm Bill as an alternative to a more traditional price-support program with lower prices that would cut farm income.

"The referendum plan came from Northwest and North Central Iowans," Bedell said. "In my recent Open Door and Farm Advisory Committee meetings, people voted 650-22 that farmers should be allowed to vote on a program that would strengthen farm income as compared to the alternatives in the bill, that would help maintain exports and that would cost taxpayers less money than current programs.

Industry Person of the Year selected by World Dairy Expo

MADISON, Wis. – Thomas L. Lyon, general manager of 21st Century Genetics Cooperative, Shawano, Wis., will be honored by World Dairy Expo as the 1985 "Industry Person of the Year."

Lyon's award will be presented at a special reception and recognition banquet on Oct. 1 in Madison, Wis. The Industry Person of the Year must be a salaried person employed in the dairy industry.

An Iowa native, Lyon is still actively involved in the management of Cedar Valley Dairy, a family-held, 100-cow herd near Atalissa, Iowa. While attending Iowa State University he was active in the dairy science club, serving as the group's president; and was a member of the dairy cattle judging teams. After graduation he spent five years with the Iowa State Dairy Association.

Lyon joined Midwest Breeders Cooperative in 1967 as a public relations specialist and moved to the position of general manager in 1976. Through a recent merger with Minnesota Valley Breeders Cooperative, the resulting new cooperative, 21st Century Genetics, is the nation's largest member-owned artificial insemination cooperative.

Tom Lyon is a recognized leader in cattle breeding circles whose expertise has been widely sought. He has served as president of both the National Association of Animal Breeders and U.S. Genes, a cooperative artificial insemination marketing organization in the western United States. He is an active member of the Dairy Shrine and in 1982 chaired Wisconsin's June Dairy Month promotion programs.

Lyon's leadership capabilities have also been well utilized in the field of education. Not only has he been a member of both the University of Wisconsin-Madison and University of Wisconsin-River Falls Advisory Committees, but he was also named to the UW Board of Regents Review Committees for both the Dairy Science Department and later the University Center for Cooperatives.

Lyon founded a five-cooperative research program that annually provides $50,000 to the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He is vice president of the Council of Agricultural Research, Extension and Teaching (CARET) and president of the Wisconsin 4-H Foundation.

For ten years Lyon was superintendent of the National Intercollegiate Dairy Cattle Judging Contest held annually in conjunction with World Dairy Expo. He also is a past member of World Dairy Expo's Board of Directors.

For the past three years Mr. Lyon has held the position of President of the Wisconsin Federation of Cooperatives, a statewide trade association of over three hundred cooperative businesses operating in over two dozen industries. The cooperative members of this association annually do in excess of $7 billion of business.

Lyon has been selected by the Governor of Wisconsin to be the agricultural representative on Wisconsin's Strategic Development Commission, a blue ribbon panel of twenty-one business, industrial and government leaders in Wisconsin. He also serves as a member of the Governor's Commission on Agriculture.

Positive referendum vote assures continuation of state dairy promotion board

Dairy Marketing

HARRISBURG – Successful passage of the national dairy referendum in a vote by dairy farmers insures the continuation of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, according to Acting State Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Grubb.

Grudd said that according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, more than 120,000 dairy farmers across the country voted in the referendum, with 89.7 percent of the farmers voting in favor of continuing the program. "As a result of the national vote by dairy farmers, Pennsylvania's promotional programs will continue to receive ten cents of the 15-cent assessment from farmers wishing their funds to be used to promote sales of milk in Pennsylvania markets," said Grubb.

"This endorsement is a sign that farmers are willing to work more aggressively to market their products, a necessity if agriculture is to maintain its status as the state's number one industry," he said.

Donald Duncan, chairman of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program Advisory Board said, "The board is thrilled with the vote of support for the program's advertising and promotion efforts for Pennsylvania's dairy farmers. Farmers have now given us the go-ahead to continue the hard-hitting advertising strategy that we've carried out for the past year."

Established in March 1984, the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program has carried out a $2.5 million program of advertising, promotion, research and nutrition education designed to increase consumption of milk and dairy products.

The board has produced television, radio, newspaper and outdoor advertising using the "Make It Milk" theme, as well as funding cholesterol research, the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess program, and expanding coverage of the Dairy Council units in Pennsylvania.

"We're very pleased with the amount of advertising we've been able to place in just one year," Duncan said. "Now the board can continue its efforts to help the dairy farmers of Pennsylvania."

The program has produced five television commercials, 14 radio spots, three newspaper advertisements and two outdoor billboards, which have been placed throughout the state. In addition, point of sale materials have been developed for use in supermarkets and by local county dairy promotion organizations.

Duncan said, "Dairy farmers who support the program should be pleased to know that all this has been carried out with administrative costs and board expenses of less than two percent of all funds collected. In fact, we have earned more in interest on these funds than we've spent on administration. That's effective use of the farmers' dollars."

"The Department of Agriculture commends Pennsylvania dairy farmers for their decision to continue this program," Grubb said. "By doing so, the dairy industry can build on the successes which have been evident in its first year of operations."

Wisconsin Holstein breeder named Expo Man of the Year

MADISON, Wis. – Eugene W. Nelson, a well-known Holstein breeder from Union Grove, Wis., has been chosen as the recipient of World Dairy Expo's 1985 Man of the Year Award. Nelson will be honored at a special reception and recognition banquet in Madison, Wis., on October 1.

The Man of the Year is cited for his contributions to the dairy industry and must be a dairy farmer whose main source of income is derived from the farm.

Gray View Farms, Nelson's prize-winning Holstein farm, is one of the oldest continually operating herds in the nation. Gray View has been among the leaders in the number of animals that have been recognized in the All-American program with 39 All-Americans or Reserves.

The herd has also been home to 21 Gold Medal Dams and 23 Gold Medal Sires plus numerous animals with high lifetime production records. Gray View's reputation is international, with thousands of foreign visitors coming to view the herd and many animals purchased for export.

Gene Nelson has been a strong promoter of local, state and national Holstein shows, as well as being a nationally and internationally recognized judge of such shows. He has judged shows in Japan, several South American countries and throughout the United States.

A founder of World Dairy Expo, Nelson continues to serve as secretary-treasurer, executive committee member and chairman of the dairy cattle show committee. His foresight and tireless energy on behalf of World Dairy Expo have contributed immeasurably toward the show's success.

A member of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America for over forty years, Nelson has never hesitated to volunteer to serve either in a leadership or participative role in either state or national Holstein organizations. A past president of the Wisconsin Holstein Association, Nelson was active on its committees and served many years on its board of directors.

He also served for eight years as a director of the national Holstein Association where he was a member of many committees, including the committee that developed the new "True-Type Holstein" model for the breed.

A graduate of the University of Wisconsin, Nelson was recently recognized as one of the select group honored each year by the university for contributions to agriculture and rural life. He also was recipient of the Wisconsin Holstein Association's 1985 Distinguished Service Award.

Gene Nelson is in the process of turning the management of Gray View Farms over to his oldest son, Steve, the fourth generation to operate the same farm. Gene's contributions to the Holstein breed and the dairy industry have been many and the impact of his contributions will last for many years to come.

Regs changed on Johne's disease

WASHINGTON – The U.S. Department of Agriculture has proposed to lift federal restrictions on movement of cattle with paratuberculosis, or Johne's disease, a chronic cattle disease that can cause diarrhea and weight loss.

"We are proposing to take this action because we believe that states, in cooperation with individual herd owners, are best equipped to deal with the disease," said Bert W. Hawkins, administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

Hawkins said the regulations were designed to prevent interstate spread of the disease.

"We now believe that the best way to prevent spread is by herd owners practicing good husbandry, in particular strict sanitation," he said. "Animals in affected herds should be tested at regular intervals, and owners should participate in voluntary herd plans in their own states."

Latin agribusinessmen visit York Farm Credit

YORK – Twenty Costa Rican ag businessmen visited the York Farm Credit offices September 20, as part of their two-month visit to study the American agricultural cooperative system.

The Costa Rican visitors are managers of agricultural input supply stores, participating in the exchange sponsored by Agricultural Cooperative Development International.

Hosts for the York Farm Credit visit were manager Jay Rush and York branch office senior loan officer Frank Cerda. Cerda, a native of the Dominican Republic, served as an interpreter during the local visit and briefed the visitors on the structure of the Farm Credit cooperative system. While in York, the delegation also visited the Agway stores.

As part of their study tour, the Costa Rican co-op guests took cross-cultural workshops in Washington, D.C., and will receive on-the-job training with local managers of Farmland Industries cooperative stores in Kansas. Each will spend a week with co-op member families, as further on-farm introduction to American agriculture.

Agricultural Cooperative Development International is a Washington, D.C., based organization of 40 major U.S. ag supply, marketing manufacturing and credit cooperatives and national farmer organizations.

A delegation of 20 Costa Rican ag supply store managers visited the York Farm Credit officers and were briefed on the cooperative lending system by senior loan officer Frank Cerda.

In addition, PAFC is sponsoring the second annual Cooperative Month kick-off luncheon Wednesday, Oct. 2 at the Penn Harris Convention Center. # Grange to hold convention Oct. 28-31 in Warren

HARRISBURG – State Grange Master Charles Wismer announced that the state's largest farm organization, the Pennsylvania State Grange, will meet for its 113th annual convention in Warren, Oct. 28-31.

An estimated 1,500 Grange Members from nearly every Pennsylvania county will flock to Warren to attend the convention. Delegates representing each of the 550 local and 54 pomona district granges will decide legislative policy for the 1985-86 year with issues centering on agricultural, environmental and rural concerns. Policy development starts at the local, grassroots level of the Grange.

The state convention is hosted in a different county each year through a bidding process. Warren and Forest Counties, with a combine membership of nearly 900 members, will host the 1985 convention in Warren for the first time in the Grange's 113-year history. Most events will take place at the Library Theatre, an historic, renovated opera house in center city Warren. Some events, including craft exhibits, will be at the Holiday Inn, Warren.

The annual state talent contest featuring district talent finalists in six categories of competition will be held on Oct. 30 at 7:30 p.m. at the Library Theatre. The event is free and open to the public.

A number of dignitaries will address the Grange members during the convention activities, including Governor Dick Thornburgh.

Tailgate market brings fresh produce to Philadelphians

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA – They come to this market on foot, in cars, and on cycles and they come in a steady stream. They are city people, enjoying the opportunity to get farm fresh produce at reasonable prices right in their own neighborhood.

Each Saturday two trucks from New Jersey and two from Lancaster, Pa., pull up to the street in front of an abandoned fire house and set up tables, filling them with produce picked that morning or late the day before. This market at 40th and Baltimore Streets is one of three operating as part of the Philadelphia Tailgate Market Coalition, designed to serve a limited population with a limited number of items.

Andy McNitt, Phildelphia County agent, said "What we're trying to do is to place the market in the middle of a location where fresh produce is not available. The city loves having us here because they see us as revitalization of urban blight. They are very interested in agriculture."

Standholders at this market include John Shenk, Lititz, who is secretary-treasurer of the Tailgate Market group; Lamar Weaver, Landisville, Pa.; Specca Farms, Mount Holly, N.J.; and Bill Van Scoy, Swedesboro, N.J. The four are all vegetable producers, but offer a variety of produce.

The market is strongly supported by the Cedar Park Neighbors Association, a group which was active in inviting the producers into the area. Buyers at the market represent a wide cross-section of racial and ethnic groups, buy they all have one thing in common: they appreciate the fresh produce and the friendly service.

When questioned about why she liked having the market in her neighborhood, one woman replied, "Let it stay right here, please."

Another regular customer pointed out that the market is especially beneficial to elderly people because they can walk with their shopping carts and not have to rely on the trolley.

In some ways a visit to the market is a social event. Neighbors greet neighbors and catch up on items of local interest. They share their ideas on what the best buys are, and they discuss ways of preparation. Two women held a spirited discussion of the four varieties of sweet potatoes offered by Van Scoy, and the best method of preparing each kind.

Many of the customers are interested at this time of the year in how much longer the market will stay open. The answer: until Thanksgiving. Shenk notes, "Our season is from June to November."

Dale Martin, who lives in Philadelphia, helps at Lamar Weaver's stand by weighing produce.

Residents also look for certain items and wonder how much longer they will be available or how soon items will be ready. There is a lot of discussion between the standholders and the customers, most of whom are repeat, and therefore familiar by face.

Mrs. Walter R. Amesbury travels each week from the Society Hill section of the city, because, "The vegetables are so much fresher. There is no comparison with the supermarket."

Mrs. Amesbury filled the trunk of her car, and explained, "I have a 15-cubic foot freezer I must fill." She carefully shopped from stand to stand, choosing a variety of vegetables. She also inquired after Weaver's 11-year-old son Michael who is often in attendance, and asked to be remembered to him.

A young woman reported to Weaver on the delicious preserves she made from fruit purchased earlier in the season. It is this kind of interaction that makes the market interesting for Weaver and the others.

Rebecca Neville is just 4½ years old, but already is a seasoned market visitor. She enjoys helping her mother shop, but also likes the visit to the park which is across the street from the market.

"It fulfills my fantasies of being on a farm," another young woman says of the market. The market location near the University of Pennsylvania attracts many students and professors as well as long-time residents.

Another feature of the tailgate market which appeals to buyers is being able to choose their own vegetables from the table. In some established markets the standholders select the vegetables and

An elderly customer questions John Shenk about his produce. Many elderly customers frequent the tailgate market which allows them to have fresh food within walking distance of their home.

These two customers ride their cycle three miles every week because "it's fresh." Here they get ready for the trip home after carefully storing their purchases.

customers never get their hands on them. At this market, customers are handed plastic bags to use in making their choices.

Shenk notes that the idea of tailgate markets came about because of the involvement of the Catholic Archdiocese. Their nutritional development service began working with green farmers in an effort to help both farmers and the people within their area.

Although the markets have drawn people who grow produce, Shenk points out that they are not limited to produce. For instance, the group would like to find someone who makes baked goods for the 40th and Baltimore market.

Shenk remarks, "This is good for a certain size farmer. It's not for the real big farmer who has to hire labor. We feel it is worthwhile."

He said they also try to be realistic in assigning the number of standholders to a particular market area. "If there are too many, it is not good." So far, having too many has not been a problem, and Shenk welcomes inquiries from others who might be interested, though he cautions that starting in the spring is the best time. "We could use more people at most locations. We need to develop the proper ratio between customers and farmers," he remarks.

McNitt noted that a fourth market is scheduled to open and the Coalition would like to open more if they could find interested farmers. He said a planning meeting is held each February for the coming season, and interested persons can contact him at (215) 276-5166. A person who comes all season is the one who makes it because he builds up a clientele and a market," McNitt said.

There is a cost of $50 to join the Tailgate Coalition plus a $10 fee to have the scales labeled for the season, a requirement by the city A third charge is $50 for a mercantile license, another city requirement.

The first market at this location was held last summer, and standholders were gratified to find people waiting for them the first day because of the effective work of the neighborhood association. Shenk says, "They did a real nice job of handing out flyers."

There had been a market at a neighboring church, but the Cedar Park Neighbors were interested in asking the city to use the fire hall for an indoor market. They are still working on the project, and see the tailgate market as a first step in realizing their dream.

Arthur Hicks, vice-president of the Cedar Park Neighbors, says the group would like to be able to use the building rather than have it sit idle and deteriorate. He thinks it would be nice to use the whole first floor for the market which would also mean there would be restroom facilities available.

Hicks says the local residents wait for the market each week. "The food is fresh and at a reasonable price. We have people who look forward to it and if it's not here, it creates a hardship."

He said the best publicity for the market is "word of deed," adding that when people see him walking down the street with great fresh vegetables, they ask him where he bought them. Hicks said the residents appreciate the courtesy shown them by standholders.

The four standholders also share a good rapport and they do not try to undercut each other with prices. Rather they tend to be supportive and helpful and, as Shenk notes, "We all get along real well." Chris Cheesman of Specca Farms says that customers often try to buy something from each of the four standholders, even though they may have a favorite.

Specca Farms, which has over 200 acres of produce, goes to markets three days a week, including a market in Trenton. Cheesman said they like the limited hours of this Phildelphia market which runs from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The standholders do not sell before the starting time, and customers wait politely while they set up their stands. When closing time comes, they quickly re-load their trucks, but will get something off the truck for latecomers if requested.

Bill Van Scoy, who also operates a roadside stand from his home, says, "This is the best market here. We see a lot of the same faces and we look forward to it. We try to keep competitive prices."

Two items which sell here but not at other markets are okra and black eyed peas. Greens of all kinds–mustard, turnips, collards, kale–also are big sellers at this market. Cheesman says that greens become better sellers after the first frost because they are more tender. Weaver says he doesn't even take his greens to Lancaster markets because those customers are not familiar with using them.

It was pointed out that customers often return to the market two or three times throughout the four-hour period it is in operation. Weaver says they do it because they can't carry everything they want to buy in one trip, but also because they go home, taste something and decide to buy more of it.

Weaver, who stands at Root's and Green Dragon markets at home, says the average bill of visitors to this market is higher than the other markets he attends. "People buy a lot of different items," he says.

Weaver raises about 20 acres of produce in Lancaster County, but enjoys the trip to Philadelphia, feeling it is worth his effort.

He notes, "We try to have as wide a variety as possible. We control the hours, and having it start at 10 a.m. means we can pick sweet corn and other perishable items before we go." Shenk concurs, but adds, "In the fall we are hampered by the lack of daylight in the morning because we can't pick as long as we'd like."

One of the tricks of the trade is knowing how much produce to take along. Weaver says, "We try to sell out of some items, but also bring home a few things. I try to match the harvest with what we need. You get used to planning."

Although he never intended to become a farmer, Weaver enjoys the challenge of it, and says his philosophy is to have a wide diversification with high quality.

Linda Shenk is a teacher by profession, but travels with her husband to the market each Saturday. She enjoys visiting with the people as she works, and says honestly, "I like selling better than picking."

Like her husband, Linda also believes that local residents appreciate their coming. In fact, she says the neighborhood is still talking about the first day of market last summer when they brought along two calves to introduce the Philadelphians to another phase of agriculture.

The Philadelphia tailgate market experience provides an outlet for farmers as well as high quality foods and reasonable prices to consumers. It also provides some valuable interaction between farmers and urban customers, opening a line of communication that is much needed by agriculture today.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

The other day I got to thinking about my parents and how, in my youth, I had determined that when I got to be their age, I would act and react differently than they did. Yet somehow one becomes more and more like them as years pass by. My children probably see me with different eyes than I see myself.

When they need or want something they go out and buy it. But, I tend to improvise. I'd decide that this dress or coat was good enough for another year. I put up with faulty appliances as long as possible and when I must replace them I feel the price is five times too high. I suppose I'm still remembering the 1940 and 1950 prices for merchandise.

I admit that living through the Depression of the early 1930's probably affected my view on money. One of my first hard lessons in life still remains with me

As a twelve-year-old, my parents decided that I could have 12 chickens of my own. My chickens were kept in an unused pigpen and I kept careful records of the 12 cents per dozen that I was paid for the eggs. I'd never been given an allowance–just a nickle or dime here and there if we went to town.

The real shocker came when my father called me downstairs one night and presented me with a bill for feed that was more than my hard earned savings. That night I handed over all of my money and cried myself to sleep.

Our children with their many college degrees earn fabulous amounts compared to my husband and I and so I guess it is only natural that they find my attitude toward money odd. I really have to work at being generous. At Christmass this year, I expect to surprise them with some unusual gifts.

Make the most of apple harvest

The signs of fall are gradually beginning to appear. A touch of red colors the tree in the front yard, Indian corn graces the front door, a plump pumpkin rests on the stoop, and the odor of fresh apple pie wafts from the kitchen.

While apples are readily available throughout the year, harvest time is the best time to enjoy their nutritious goodness.

Apples contain modest amounts of a number of vitamins and minerals, plus pectin and a high quality dietary fiber for proper functioning of the body's digestive and regulatory systems.

According to the International Apple Institute, apples also have a high percentage of potassium and a low percentage of sodium, making them a helpful dietary aid for certain cardiac and renal disorders.

And, since apples are 85 percent water, they are slimming. The average size apple supplies only about 85 calories, with much of this coming from quick energy supplying natural sugars.

APPLE SALAD

2 eggs, beaten
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup water
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon vinegar
4 to 5 apples

Mix all ingredients except apples together in a saucepan and bring to a boil. Cool. When ready to use, add apples, 1 banana (diced), 1½ dozen miniature marshmallows and a few chopped nuts.

3 cups chopped apples
½ cup chopped nuts (optional)

Combine all ingredients and pour into ungreased 9-inch pie plate. Bake 40 to 45 minutes at 350°F. Serve with milk or ice cream. Serves 6 to 8.

APPLE WAFFLES

2 eggs, well beaten
2 teaspoons sugar
1½ cups milk
2 cups all-purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt

Beat above ingredients together thoroughly. Add ½ cup melted butter last. Add chopped apples to suit your taste. Make in waffle iron. When finished, spead with peanut butter and molasses or your favorite syrup.

BUTTERY CINNAMON SKILLET APPLES

⅓ cup butter
½ to ¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1½ cups water
¼ to ½ teaspoon cinnamon
4 medium unpeeled cooking apples cored cut in half

In a 10-inch skillet melt butter over medium heat for 3 to 4 minutes. Stir in sugar and cornstarch. Mix well. Add remaining ingredients. Cover and cook over medium heat, spooning sauce over apples occasionally, until apples are fork tender and sauce is thickened.

APPLE TREASURE BREAD

2⅓ cups buttermilk baking mix
1 cup old-fashioned rolled oats
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces
½ cup golden seedless raisins
½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
3 eggs, well beaten
⅓ cup vegetable oil
1 cup sweetened applesauce

Stir together first 4 ingredients. Add chocolate, raisins and nuts. Combine eggs, oil and applesauce; stir in. Mix for ½ minute. Spoon into greased 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350°F. for 50 to 60 minutes. Cool bread in pan. Remove and wrap. Best served the day after baking for easier slicing.

APPLE DUMPLINGS

Pare and core 6 whole apples. Fill centers with sugar. Sprinkle with nutmeg and cinnamon.

Pastry:
2 cups flour
¾ cup shortening
1½ teaspoon baking powder
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon salt

Boil together for 5 minutes the following ingredients:
1½ cups water
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
⅓ teaspoon nutmeg

Remove and add ½ cup butter to hot mixture. Pour over apple dumplings before putting into oven. Bake at 375°F. for 35 minutes.

CREAMY APPLE SLAW

1 tablespoon white vinegar
2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon prepared mustard
Dash of salt
¾ cup dairy sour cream
3 cups shredded cabbage
2 cups cubed apples, dipped in lemon juice
¼ cup grated carrot
3 tablespoons finely chopped celery

Blend together vinegar, lemon juice, sugar, mustard and salt. Fold in sour cream. Cover and chill. When ready to serve, toss cabbage, apples, carrot and celery together; add dressing and toss.

Applesauce gives Apple Treasure Bread its moist texture.

CROCKPOT APPLE BUTTER

6 pounds mixed varieties of cooking apples, cored and quartered. (They may be pared, but nice red skins add color to apple butter.) Cook with 2 to 3 cups fresh apple cider instead of water until the apples are tender. Cool. Put apples through food mill. Measure. Put applesauce into crock pot and cook until it thickens. Add ½ to ⅔ cup sugar (part brown) to 1 cup sauce, depending on tartness of apples. Taste before you add it all. Add 2 teaspoons cinnamon. (If desired, add ¼ to ½ teaspoon cloves and/or allspice.) Cook until nice and thick in crock pot. Spoon into hot, sterilized jars to within ¼ inch from top. Adjust jar lids. Process in boiling water bath for 10 minutes. This recipe can be done in the oven with frequent stirring. Makes about 3 pints.

APPLE FRITTERS

1 cup flour
2 tablespoons sugar
½ cup milk
5 or 6 apples
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg

Core and peel apples. Slice and put in the batter. Drop by spoonfuls in 1-inch of fat or oil in frying pan. Drain on paper towel or in colander. Sprinkle with powdered sugar or eat with syrup. Jag with fork when frying to test if apples are soft. Makes about 4 skillets full of fritters.

Susanna E. Stoltzfus
Fleetwood

APPLESAUCE

6 cooking apples
½ cup water
⅓ to ½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
Few grains nutmeg, cinnamon or cloves

Wash apples, pare, quarter and core. (If apples have red skins and a red sauce is desired, do not pare, remove cores only. Proceed as follows but strain apples before adding sugar.)

Add water and cook in a covered saucepan until apples are soft. Press apples through a strainer or sieve. If small pieces of the apples are to be left in the sauce, mash with potato masher. Add sugar, salt and spices. Serves 4.

DUTCH APPLE PIE

2 cups diced apples
2 tablespoons flour
¾ cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sour cream

Mix all ingredients except flour well. Add flour to apple mixture and pour into unbaked crust. Top with crumbs.

Crumbs:
½ cup oatmeal
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup flour
¼ cup butter
1/8 teaspoon baking soda
1/8 teaspoon baking powder

Bake at 350°F. for 40 minutes.

Charlene Gingrich
Mercersburg

APPLE STRUDEL

1 package yellow cake mix
½ cup butter
¼ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 apples, sliced thin
1 cup sour cream
1 egg

Combine cake mix and butter until crumbly. Remove ⅔ cup and add sugar and cinnamon (topping). Press remaining crumbs into ungreased 9 x 13-inch pan. Arrange apples on top crumbs. Mix sour cream and egg together. Spread over apples. Sprinkle crumbs over top. Bake 30 minutes at 350°F. Let cool. Store in refrigerator.

Featured Recipe

This week's featured recipe comes from Lynne Wilson of Wilson Farms, Lexington, Mass. Lynne and her husband, Alan, operate a retail/wholesale family business, where they sell fruits, vegetables and fresh flowers.

On weekends, Lynne does cooking demonstrations for their customers, a wise marketing technique that helps the Wilsons sell more of whatever it is she features. Lynne is in the process of publishing a cookbook with her favorite recipes. The Pumpkin Custard Pie recipe below is from her book, "The Wilson Farm Country Cookbook." To learn more about Wilson Farms Inc. see the story featuring it in this section.

Pumpkin Custard Pie

Use either cooked mashed pumpkin or squash (butternut, hubbard, etc.) to make this mild custard pie.

Make a 9-inch pie shell and brush the inside with slightly beaten egg white.

1 cup light cream
1 cup milk
4 eggs
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup cooked, pureed (or whipped) pumpkin or squash

Scald the cream and milk together and set aside. In a mixing bowl, beat the eggs and then stir in the sugar, salt, vanilla, nutmeg and pumpkin or squash. Stir in the milk and cream, and pour into the prepared pie shell. If desired, sprinkle a little additional nutmeg over top

Bake pie at 425° F for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 350° F and continue baking 25 to 30 minutes longer until custard tests done with a knife. Serve at room temperature or slightly chilled. Refrigerate any leftover pie.

Chester County wool festival to offer Sheep to Shawl contest

COCHRANVILLE – A "Sheep to Shawl" contest will be one of the features during Chester County's first Wool Festival. The festival will be held in conjunction with the Unionville Community Fair, Oct. 10, 11, and 12.

The first place team will receive a prize of $100, while $75 will be awarded the second place team and $50 to the third placing team. The shawls created in the contest will be auctioned during the fair's Gala Auction.

Funds from the sale of the shawls will be shared by the participating teams and the fair committee.

Each participating team will consist of three spinners and a weaver. Each team will provide its own grease-wool fleece, just as it has come from the sheep (skirting is allowed).

The teams will card the wool into yarn and weave it into a finished shawl which must measure at least 20 inches in the reed and 70 inches long with a minimum fringe of 7 inches. Judging will be on team identity, quality of spinning and weaving, design and speed.

In addition to the "Sheep to Shawl" contest, the Wool Festival will sponsor contests in spinning wool, cooking lamb, "Shepherd's Lead," and a skein and garment competition featuring items made from handspun wool.

All competitions are "open." Contest rules and entry forms are available by contacting Peggy Devine, Box 308, West Grove, PA 19390, telephone 215-869-9379.

Cleaning a Cider Press

As to keeping cider press racks clean and sweet we washed them thoroughly after each use and put them into a large tank of water containing some chlorine Then the tank was covered.

At the end of the season the racks were washed thoroughly and dried and put in storage until next season Before using again, the racks were submerged in hot paraffin one at a time to keep them from absorbing so much liquid We had a special stainless steel shallow container made to do this Using this method we had no trouble with musty odors and were always approved by the state health inspector

Farmer's Brunch

UNIVERSITY PARK – A free "Farmers' Brunch" is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 12 at the Hetzel Union Building on the Pennsylvania State University campus. Local vegetable growers Greg McCarrden and Jackie Greenfield will lead a discussion on farmers' markets–how they are organized, what regulations have to be met, how the farmers make decisions, and where to locate a market.

McCarrden and Greenfield mark this as their fifth season at the State College Farmers' Market Their experience can help others decide what to grow, how to display fresh produce, and what costs are involved with direct marketing.

A brunch of bagels, cream cheese, yogurt, fruit, tea and coffee starts at 9 30 and runs until 11 a.m. The brunch will be in the HUB room 305 and is open to all students, faculty, staff and the public

The event is hosted by Circleville Farm, the student farm at Penn State. For further information contact the farm office at 863-2745 or stop by 214 Armsby Building.

Delaware students receive Plant Food Association awards

NEWARK, Del. – Two University of Delaware seniors majoring in plant science have received scholarships from the Delaware-Maryland Plant Food and Crop Protection Association, Inc. Recipients were Juliet Marshall, Camden, and Roydean Armstrong, Hockessin. Association president Gerard Warwick presented the scholarships during the College of Agricultural Sciences Honors Day ceremonies.

Marshall is president of the campus collegiate Future Farmers of America. She recently completed her second summer collecting field data for the university's soybean task force, a joint research and extension project funded in part by the Delaware Soybean Board and aimed at identifying the key factors which affect yield in this crop.

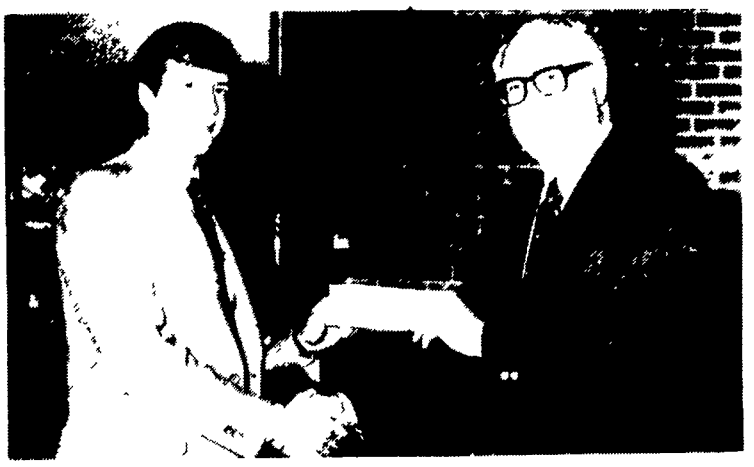
Marshall has also been awarded a scholarship as a teacher's assistant at the university and will conduct a weekly lab for an introductory soil science course taught by Professor Leo . Cotnoir of the department of plant science. She is considering agriculture related extension or government work, or research as possible career goals.

Armstrong worked this summer for Du Pont at the Stine-Haskell research farm. The previous two summers he conducted field and lab research on corn and soybeans with Dr. William H. Mitchell, professor emeritus, and Robert Uniatowski, field crops assistant, both from the department of plant science. Armstrong was a teacher's assistant to Dr. Mitchell this spring for a turf maintenance and management course.

Armstrong, whose grandfather was a grain and cotton farmer, and whose father works for Du Pont formulating herbicides, is considering several career options– attending graduate school, working for Du Pont in agricultural chemistry or sales, or pursuing overseas agricultural mission work with the Southern Baptist Convention.

The Delaware-Maryland Plant Food and Crop Protection Association, Inc. scholarships are given annually to outstanding students with interests in agronomy, vegetables crops or soil fertility.

Juliet Marshall, a University of Delaware senior majoring in plant science, receives a scholarship check from Gerard Warwick, president of the Delaware-Maryland Plant Food Association.



Roydean Armstrong, a University of Delaware senior majoring in plant science, receives a scholarship check from Gerard Warwick, president of the Delaware-Maryland Plant Food Association.

Sandra Byrne selected NJ FFA member of the month

NEW BRUNSWICK, NJ – Sandra Byrne, a student at Allentown High School, is the September Outstanding FFA Member in New Jersey.

The Outstanding Member of the Month award is presented to the FFA member who has shown outstanding leadership and participation in the organization. Members throughout the state submit their applications to be judged by the State FFA Officers and Executive Committee at the regular monthly meeting held at Cook College, Rutgers University.

Byrne has been involved in vocational agriculture/FFA for four years. During this time, she has served on several chapter officer teams and presently is the president of the Allentown FFA Chapter.

Byrne's supervised occupational experience projects have been diverse in the field of agriculture. She has practiced her skills learned in the vocational agriculture classroom as an assistant grounds keeper of a local golf course. She has landscaped a home and has had responsibilities for raising sheep.

She has served on several committees and contest teams, and has attended several state conferences and state conventions. Her advisor says, "Sandra is a very dedicated FFA member." Byrne explains, "Through the FFA you become leaders of today, and building agriculture's future for tomorrow. I feel that the FFA is ag valuable organization to help gain hands-on experience.

In May, Sandra will compete with each Outstanding Member of the Month for the Outstanding Member of the Year Award. This trophy will be presented at the State FFA convention at Cook College, Rutgers University.

Threat of second dust bowl haunts farmers, scientists

WASHINGTON – Harold Hogue has lived through one Dust Bowl. He isn't anxious to see another. But he's not confident that he won't.

In 1935, the blinding storms that uprooted the Great Plains destroyed his wheat crop at Dalhart, Texas.

Hogue stuck it out. With hard work, he survived the Depression, and today he farms 20 verdant square miles of Texas grain. He drives a Coupe de Ville, winters in Palm Springs. His land is irrigated with water pumped from wells; natural gas powers the pumps. Still, he is apprehensive.

"A lot of people say we'll never have another Dust Bowl," he says. But we can. "With the price of natural gas, we could go back to dryland farming soon. A lot of farmers already are," he says.

$1 Billion Loss

Eroding cropland may cost the United States $1 billion a year in polluted and sedimented rivers and lakes. But soils are complicated, and the entent and causes of erosion vary.

In 1977, the U.S. Soil Conservation Service estimates, some three billion tons of soil were "lost" from cultivated fields, two-thirds from water and one-third from wind. One-fifth of the eroded cropland came from Texas.

The entry of American farmers into the export business, spurred by grain sales to the Soviet Union in 1972, sent prices soaring and led to a fivefold increase in the value of U.S. farm exports by the end of the decade.

It also aggravated the erosion problem, as farmers plowed up an additional 60 million acres, much of it previously protected by grass.

Views on soil erosion depend on where one lives, Boyd Gibbons writes. There are, he explains, upwards of 30,000 different soils in this country.

"Without soils there would be no grass, no cows, no bread, no us," he writes. "When we think that man runs the show on earth, we might recall that earth is mostly rock and life only a veneer on it, sustained largely by a sheet of soils derived from and covering the rock."

"Nature beats up the landscape," says Dick Arnold, director of the SCS soil survey division. "But man accelerates it. Soils are important to survival. Let's not beat them up if we don't have to."

Varied Origins

Some soils are born from rotted bedrock, as in the Piedmont area of the eastern United States. Others evolve from rock moved in from elsewhere by wind, water, or glaciers.

"In many ways, soils are still a mystery," says Arnold. "We know some basic physics and chemistry, but we still have a lot to learn about how soils form."

Landscapes alternate between cycles of erosion and stability. Clay and organic particles can travel hundreds of miles in a big storm.

"Most people have no idea how fast landscapes can change," says Ray Daniels, former SCS director of soil survey investigations. "In some cases man-made erosion may be faster, in others slower, than geologic erosion."

Crop yields have been increasing for years, despite erosion, and scientists think technology, particularly the tenfold increase in the use of commercial fertilizer since World War II, has masked erosion damage.

Gibbons notes that "soil conservation is still dictated more by economics than by good intentions." Farmers are deep-plowing less to save money–on fuel, for example–and increased mulch on their fields has reduced runoff and erosion.

In 1983, the federal government spent $1 billion on erosion control and $28 billion on subsidies to farmers, the subsidies up dramatically from $7 billion two years earlier.

The Reagan Administration and Congress are targeting erosion-control efforts on areas deemed to need them most. "The trick is to crack the big-equipment syndrome and get the farmer off that big breaking plow," says Peter Myers, head of the SCS.

"We've always gone at erosion as a moral issue, but now we also want to appeal to the farmer in dollars and cents. We have to be careful not to paint a distorted picture. Soil erosion is not a today problem; it's a tomorrow problem, but you have to work on it today."

Great Potential Erosion

Bill Fryrear, head of the U.S. Agriculture Department's Agricultural Research Service station at Big Spring, Texas, thinks the potential for erosion is greater now than it was in the 1930's," he told Gibbons, "we're in for some real trouble. You're in country now that man in his infinite wisdom did not improve upon."

Another big plow-up of the Middle West's erodible soils is inevitable if exports and prices soar again, Gibbons concludes. He writes:

"Those men on the plows churning up High Plains range are hoping for rain and a few bumper wheat crops to pay off a gamble in country where grass returns slowly and drought holds the cards."

Desert-like appearance of a farm in the Texas Panhandle, a productive cotton-growing region, shows the ravages of a windstorm that lifted the silt and left the sand. Texas accounts for 17 percent of the nation's land erosion, and many Texans fear a return of the 1930's Dust Bowl. Some think it's already started. In 1977, the Soil Conservation Service estimated, three billion tons of plowed soil were lost to wind and water.

Is it just at our house or do other families with children active in various activities experience the same problem?

Do you have all sorts of unfamiliar objects turning up in your household? This phenomenon invariably reaches a peak just after the youngsters return from some 4-H activity–generally a cattle show or camp.

An "Indian type" blanket, for instance, has resided for the past couple of years on the basement couch. The beige woven coverlet tagged along home from a county cattle show many moons ago, and ongoing attempts to locate the original owner have continued to be unsuccessful.

Likewise the fate of one light blue washcloth, which spent a week at 4-H camp earlier this year. Ancestry of the item remains a mystery, and it stubbornly refuses to reveal the method used to stowaway in the teenager's camp counseling gear.

Now, the bag sheltering sneakers and assorted clothing that hid under a living room table for a week in July found a happier ending. Questioning revealed that the contents belonged to a cousin who becomes part of the family during cattle shows, and they were eventually returned just in time for the next such event.

Our showbox boasts a collection of washrack residuals, acquired during general cleanups. Unfamiliar plastic tail combs with several teeth missing, worn bristle brushes and at least one badly bent currycomb have a swelled the contents of the already-messy showbox.

Lest this all sound like a one-sided problem, let me hastily add that we often are the "losers" as well. Other mothers return lost clothing left behind by our 4-H'ers sharing tendencies. And, someone, somewhere, is hopefully finding good use of a giant-sized, brand new, rubber watering tub we left behind at the Farm Show building some time ago.

As a bit of insurance against our own forgetfulness, we've adopted the "graffiti" approach. Anything that can be labeled, in the equipment line, sports our name in wobbly, spray-painted letters, or black Magic Marker signatures.

The most recent accumulation proved an interesting one. As I unloaded a trunkload of chairs, coolers, sleeping bags, folding table and similar show life amenity items, out came a pink fuzzy blanket (not ours), and a like-new brushed flannel shirt (hum, my size?).

While following up a day or two later on the stack of straw, hay, and manure-laced laundry, I happened to pull out of the soggy pile a cut-off tee-shirt in a color that I didn't recognize as having ever been through the wash before.

Lucky we have no real close neighbors, since I let out a hoot of laughter as I turned the shirt right-side out and caught the slogan printed there in bright white letters: "Don't Mess With My Toot Toot."

(Having just heard a radio program's explanation of that song title, I wasn't too stunned by the message–the rock songwriter who authored this ditty came from a family where "toot toot" was slang for a sweetheart or baby.)

Another big of detective work linked this shirt to still another 4-H'er, whose mother declares she never saw the shirt before either.

If I ever come across an item of clothing bearing the slogan "Lost and Found Dept.!! I intend to hang on to it, regardless of the origin.

Might as well dress the part, don't you think?

Hunter Safety offered in Wayne County

HONESDALE – A Hunter Safety program is scheduled for Oct. 23 and Oct. 25, from 7 p.m to 10 p.m. each evening, at the Odd Fellows Hall, Main Street in Honesdale.

Completion of a Hunter Safety Education Program is a requirement of all first-time hunters here in Pennsylvania, regardless of age. The six hours of instruction focuses mainly on hunting safety but other important topics like the safe handling of rifle, shotguns and archery equipment are also covered.

Some other topics that will be discussed include information on game laws, hunting ethics, hunting sportsmanship, conservation practices to enhance wildlife populations and landowner-hunter relationships.

Pennyslvania's Hunter Safety Education Program began in 1959. Since then, over 1,000,000 first-time hunters have been certified through this program. The real benefit of this program has been a significant decrease in hunting accidents and hunting accident fatalities since the program is inception.

Country Inn proprietors share relaxed lifestyle with visitors

Peggy Shettel serves two guests the first part of a country-style breakfast.

BY MARY BETH RYAN

WELLSBORO – Near the start of the Grand Canyon of Pennsylvania in Tioga County lie 35 idyllic acres.

There is lake swimming in the summer, skiing in the winter, hunting in the fall, and a wonderfully relaxing vista all year 'round.

But probably the most beautiful part of this Pennsylvania paradise is that anyone can enjoy it as guests of Peggy and Paul Shettel, owners of the Colton Point Motel.

The Shettels and their three children moved to the picturesque mountain resort just west of Wellsboro from Lancaster County in November 1983 and have been enjoying an independent new lifestyle ever since.

Paul, who had been driving an ice cream truck to many rural farms in the southeastern part of the state, decided that working from 7 in the morning to 9 at night on the road wasn't allowing him enough time with his family.

When he and Peggy noticed a newspaper advertisement offering Colton Point for sale, they knew they had found the answer.

With some financial help from Peggy's parents, who now live on a part of the resort, the Shettels left their home in Christiana for a new life in the Endless Mountains.

There are no politics to play; no company to answer to," said Paul recently. "It's great to be home with the kids and to watch them grow up. And they love it here, too. It's a great place to raise a family."

While Paul emphasizes how relaxing Colton Point can be for the guests who stay in its 13 rooms, let there be no mistake that running the resort can keep the hosts plenty busy.

The Shettels open up their small dining room, where guests are offered home-cooked dinners and big country breakfasts hot off the griddle. Packages are available on a daily or weekly basis, including room, breakfast and dinner. For the sportsmen, there is also a packed lunch and thermos.

Colton Point is a year-round resort, but Paul reported that hunting season is always one of the busiest times for him as breakfast cook.

The 35 to 40 hunters that fill the rooms chow down on 500 or more eggs during the week, not to mention plenty of pancakes, home fries, sausage, bacon, ham, toast with homemade jam, and coffee.

In the evening Peggy fills the kitchen and dining room with the aroma of meats, vegetables and potatoes, and delicious home-baked pies and cakes.

"Oh, yes, it's busy," Paul admits, "but it's fun."

And if the hosts are having fun, the guests are having a ball. The two-acre pond is stocked with fish, and there is a row boat for cruising and a beach for swimming. There is also volleyball and badminton, croquet and horseshoes, and lots of room for ball games and picnics.

Located next to state gamelands, Colton Point offers many recreational opportunities within minutes of its doors. The area offers hiking, backpacking, golf, tennis, archery, canoeing, raft trips, fairs, carnivals, and horseback riding.

Nearby Colton Point, located on Route 6, are the Pennsylvania Grand Canyon, Great Pine Creek Valley, Mansfield State College, the "Wilderness Area," Stony Ford Gorge, Cowanesque Valley, and Glemer Art and Cultural Center.

But despite this wealth of things to do, Paul reported that many guests simply enjoy one of his favorite activities – relaxing.

"We get excellent reactions from our guests," he reported. "It's a European-style resort and a lot of our clientele comes just to relax. I'd say 70 percent of our business is repeat and we're starting to build on that."

About the only part of Colton Point that Paul will regret this season is that he will have to miss the 20th reunion of his class at McCaskey High School in Lancaster, which is scheduled for October in the heart of the foliage season, another busy time for motel proprietors.

"Maybe I can get some of them to spend some vacation time up here instead," he commented.

Anyone who likes the sound of a relaxing mountain vacation can write to Peggy and Paul at R.D. 4, Box 110, Wellsboro, PA 16901, for more information and room rates; or call 717-724-2155.

Proud innkeepers Paul and Peggy Shettel in their new Tioga County home.

Deactivate Stress!

This week I could be heard lamenting that getting ready to go on vacation might be more work than it's worth. Arranging for a house-sitter, stopping the newspaper, and cleaning out the refrigerator were only the peak of the iceberg! My password for the week was to "stay calm!"

While trying to prepare my columns in advance, I ran across these suggestions from Joe Cardenuto, extension parks and recreation specialist, for deactivating tension. Writing them down was therapeutic for me. Read over the list and choose one for yourself!

Sweets for the sweet: Give a truly sincere compliment and do it with a genuine smile. Do this daily for peak results.

Hup, two, three, four: Go for a walk. Don't worry if you're limited to window shopping. Just do it with style and move your muscles.

Specialize: Do something really exquisite for yourself A long bath, an expensive hairstyling or a special book might give you the treat you deserve.

Volunteer: The spirit of helpfulness is sensational and terribly contagious. It's practically impossible to ignore that love when you're surrounded by "givers."

A turn of the lips: Smile. It'll drive your adversaries wild and make you feel so much more positive.

The joke's on the screen: See a funny movie. Sure it may not "make a statement," but laughter is a proven anti-depressant.

Say no: It's hard, but saying "no" when you don't or can't assist will make you feel better–really!

Say yes: Receive an invitation to do something out of the ordinary? Don't hold back, say yes.

Walking on air: Buy a pair of athletic shoes and begin a walking program you can live with. Start slowly and hike your way to the summits of health.

Pate de foie gras anyone? No you don't have to sample goose liver pate–just try one new-to-you food.

Crisp and clean: Do one household chore you really despise. You'll feel absolutely virtuous when you finish.

Surprise: Have one perfect red rose sent to you at the office or your home. It's sure to drive your co-workers and neighbors crazy. You can merely smile then and admit, "It's from a friend." That's right–aren't you your best friend?

These suggestions may seem a little "way out," but they are a great alternative to "a double anything on the rocks" or to chomping fattening, non-nutritious crunchies as the stress mounts. Try one, two, or the whole bunch. Health is a personal responsibility, and coping with stress is a step in that direction.

And, I must admit, I'm coping better already just by getting this column done! Now, if I could only get my suitcase packed!

The boots nobody else can make.

SuperSole Red Wings—They'll last longer and feel better than any other boots you can buy.

We make the uppers the way we make all our best boots. With a lot of skill. And with water-repellent leather so good it's worth more than the whole selling price of some boots. Then we stitch a welt all the way around. So they'll fit as well when they're old as when they're new. But what's special is the way we attach the sole. Instead of stitching or gluing it on, we mold it right onto the welt. So the upper and sole become one inseparable unit. And the process gives SuperSoles a skin that wears like iron—while the inside stays as soft as cushion-crepe. Some day, other boots may be made this way. But they still won't fit and feel like Red Wings! Get the feel of SuperSole Red Wings. They're at Red Wing dealers now.

The SuperSole Secret

is Red Wing's exclusive process that permanently molds the welted leather upper and the sole into a single, inseparable unit—and gives the sole its tough outer skin over a cushion-soft inside

Centre Countian Elizabeth Heald is Pennsylvania state dairy princess

BY SUZANNE KEENE

HARRISBURG — Smiling but tearful, Elizabeth Amy Heald of Centre County received the coveted Pennsylvania dairy princess crown during the annual pageant at the Marriott Inn in Harrisburg Tuesday evening.

A 19-year-old dairy production student at Penn State University, Elizabeth competed with 37 other county dairy princesses for the title. In the coming year she will represent Pennsylvania's dairy industry as she travels across the state promoting dairy products.

Assisting her will be first runner-up Laurie Duran from Washington/Greene County, and second runner-up Jill Kutz, Wyoming/Lackawanna County dairy princess.

Elizabeth, the daughter of C. William and Judith Heald, Spring Mills, was an alternate dairy princess in Centre County two years ago. She said her experiences in college reaffirmed her commitment to the dairy industry and she decided to try for the dairy princess title again this year.

"I'm so glad I did," she said just after receiving the state crown.

In addition to a strong commitment and pride in the dairy industry, Elizabeth said she believes her smile will be an asset to her in her new role. "It welcomes people," she said.

Although she doesn't live on a dairy farm, Elizabeth said she does own one registered Holstein. Her father, C. William Heald, is a Penn State Extension dairy specialist who has worked closely with the state DHIA program.

Elizabeth is active in 4-H and college clubs. She has been secretary and president of the Centre County 4-H Dairy Club and is a member of the Penn State Dairy Science Club and the Block and Bridle Club. She is also pledging as a little sister at Alpha Gamma Rho, an agriculture fraternity at Penn State.

While a student at Penns Valley Area High School, she was treasurer of student council, president of Student Forum, and co-editor of the yearbook. She was also a member of the high school and community choirs.

1985 Pennsylvania dairy princess Elizabeth Heald, seated, is flanked by first alternate Laurie Duran, and second alternate Jill Kutz.

1984 Pennsylvania dairy princess Lynette Loper waves goodbye as her reign comes to an end.

Addressing an imaginary audience of beverage company executives, Butler County dairy princess Carolyn Schiever touts milk's attributes.

First runner-up Laurie Duran is the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael G. Duran of Bulger A Penn State University sophomore, Laurie was state FFA president and the Draft Horse and Mule Queen last year.

She graduated from Fort Cherry High School in 1984 and is active in FFA, 4-H, Grange and the Robinson United Presbyterian Church. She is also a volunteer for the American Heart and Cancer Fund

Second runner-up Jill Kutz of Wyoming/Lackawanna County is a freshman at Penn State University majoring in dairy production. The 18-year-old daughter of DuWayne and Janet Kutz of Tunkhannock, she is a 1985 honor graduate of Tunkhannock High School. Jill has been an active member of the FFA as secretary and has attended the FFA and FHA state conferences.

She is a member of the Pennsylvania and National Junior Holstein Associations and has raised 18 Holstein heifers over the years, selling them when they are ready to freshen. She currently owns one heifer.

In high school Jill was senior class treasurer, a member of the Lettermen's Club and the Junior-Senior Steering Committe and senior historian. She participated in track, tennis and basketball, and was on the Pacesetters Basketball Team of North East Pennsylavania.

The seven excited finalists prepare to answer impromptu questions. From left are Wyoming-Lackawanna County dairy princess Jill Kutz; Lancaster County dairy princess Janae Martin; Perry County dairy princess Beth Ann Rice; Blair County dairy princess Sheila Ann Biddle; Centre County dairy princess Elizabeth Heald; Butler County dairy princess Carolyn Schiever; and Washington-Greene County dairy princess Laurie Duran.

The Miss Congeniality award went to Montgomery County dairy princess Margaret Shultz, the 17-year-old daughter of Perry and Dora Shultz, Collegeville.

Dairy princesses from Lancaster, Northampton and Butler Counties were recognized for having outstanding presentations. Northampton-Lehigh County dairy princess Janet Poliskiewicz portrayed a little girl repeating to the audience what her daddy told her about milk and the dairy industry.

Lancaster County dairy princess Janae Martin dressed as a clown to explain milk's benefits for kids of all ages.

Butler County dairy princess Carolyn Schiever gave a presentation to imaginary executives of leading beverage companies, advising them that milk is going to take over the market and that they should join forces with this nutritious beverage now.

Huntingdon County dairy princess Tina Marie Shultz, Wyoming-Lackawanna County dairy princess Jill Kutz, and Washington-Greene County dairy princess Laurie Duran, all received honorable mentions for their presentations.

Scrapbook winners were Blair County dairy princess Sheila Ann Biddle and Centre County dairy princess Elizabeth Heald. Lancaster County dairy princess Janae Martin received an honorable mention.

Judy Miller, Lancaster County's 1984 dairy princess, received a $200 check and a plaque for doing the most promotions during her reign. "We figure she reached at least 10,000 people throughout her reign," said Southeast District Co-Chairman Mim Kauffman in presenting the award.

Other 1984 county dairy princesses recognized for outstanding promotional efforts were Elaine Hill, Mercer County; and Machelle Ann Moyer, Schuylkill County.

A number of 1984 princess received incentive awards for completing a specified number of promotions in various categories. Winners on the second level receiving $200 checks were from Adams, Bedford, Berks, Blair

Receiving $100 first-level incentive awards were dairy princesses from Armstrong, Beaver-Lawrence, Clarion-Venango, Indiana, Northampton, Washington-Greene, and York Counties

In an emotional farewell message, outgoing 1984 Pennsylvania dairy princess Lynette Loper reminded the county dairy princesses that they are the backbone of the dairy princess program and thanked them for their help during her reign.

"I can reach so many people, but they can reach so many more," she said.

Judges for the pageant were Sue Hamill, Karen Larson, John Morris and David Rama. Scrapbook judges were Susan Beshore and Wendy Wehr

Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show attracts record number of entries

BY JOYCE BUPP
and WENDY WEHR

HARRISBURG — A record number of entries paraded before an appreciative audience Monday as the 30th annual Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show opened a week of dairy events at the Farm Show Complex.

More than 940 head were catalogued, the largest number ever according to officials supervising the annual youth show. Action flowed smoothly during the day-long exhibition, with six separate breed shows running continuously in double-ring action in the Large Arena.

Norman Hill, Woodbine, Md., was official for the Brown Swiss and 4-H and FFA Holstein divisions. William Etgen, Blacksburg, Va., judged the Milking Shorthorn, Ayrshire, Guernsey and Jersey classes.

Showmanship officials were Cynthia Shaffer, Beavertown, and Lori Sollenberger, Everett. Leslie Rhoades, Tunkhannock, and Jane Pepple, Oxford, scrutinized the fitting of the entries.

Holstein - 4-H

Largest division of the show was the 4-H Holstein category, which totalled more than 300 entries from across the state.

While Crawford County 4-H'ers battled to the top of several classes, the big prize of the day went home with Berks countian Cathleen Ohlinger.

Ohlinger, a veteran 4-H exhibitor from Mohrsville, exhibited her typey homebred to the top of the senior two-year-old class, earned the best-bred-and-owned trophy, and then capped off the winning day with the senior and grand rosettes.

Her entry, Reu-Hel Farms Mars Bailey, is sired by Lime-Hollow Elevation Mars and scored VG-87 her first time before the classifier. She was unbeaten on the tanbark this season, winning at the southeast district 4-H show and taking the supreme champion honors at the Allentown Fair.

Through the show season, Bailey still managed an impressive 305-day lactation projection of just under 20,000 pounds milk.

Justin Doeberiener, Jamestown, claimed the reserve senior and grand rosettes, adding another title to a list he accumulated this season.

Earlier this month Conrid Astrostar Lynn won the youth division at the state Holstein show for her 15-year-old Crawford County owner. The Leadfield Stardom-ET daughter, bred by Howard Hammond III, also won the northwest district 4-H show championship and was first at the Western Pennsylvania Holstein Championship Show.

Lynn is scored VG-89 and boasts a 27,000 pound milk record.

Crawford County 4-H'ers overwhelmed the competition in the heifer show, taking four of the six classes. Ernest Oakes III won both the junior calf and junior yearling categories, then overtook fellow 4-H club member Michele Freyermuth for the junior championship, with his Dreamstreet Perfect Timing-ET heifer.

His win marked the fourth time in six years that an Oakes-bred junior yearling won the heifer championship at the state 4-H Holstein runoffs. The 13-year-old Cochranton youngster took the junior champion title last year with a sister of Monday's winner. Both are from a GP-82 brood dam with records to 29,000 pounds milk.

In 1980 and 1981, Oakes' sister Cinda dominated the heifer classes with homebred junior yearlings.

Freyermuth's reserve junior winner has repeatedly put the 10-year-old Crawford County 4-H'er in the winners' circle. The Walk-A-Way Fond Reliance heifer claimed the junior championships at the Pennsylvania Holstein Championship Show, as well as the northwest district 4-H competition.

Breeder of Freyermuth's entry was Russell Woodcock.

Holstein - FFA

A pleased and proud Erin Branstetter dominated FFA Holstein competition on Monday. The 15-year-old Huntingdon County youth swept up three of the four championships in the show with his Valiant entries, yielding only the reserve grand championship to Brenda Robson of Tioga County.

Branstetter's junior two-year-old, Swampy-Hollow Valiant Jenny-ET, received the judge's nod for the grand championship. Bred by John Umble and Sons, this Valiant daughter was first in her class at the Central Pennsylvania Holstein Championship Show.

Branstetter's other winners were Bransdale GVS Valiant Casey-ET, the first-place junior yearling and junior champion of the show, and Bransdale Valiant Mandy-ET, a homebred senior yearling that copped the reserve junior honors.

Branstetter is the son of Terry and Jane Branstetter, Tyrone, and is a member of the Warriors Mark FFA chapter.

Brenda Robson, an 18-year-old FFA exhibitor from Mansfield, showed Gray-Valley Kit Builder Aris for the reserve grand champion trophy. This four-year-old was bred by Robson's parents, Leona and Harold Robson.

Brown Swiss

Heading up the state Brown Swiss youth show was Kathleen Kopistecki, Royersford, exhibiting last year's reserve champion winner. Her Titan Dainty's Darling won the three-year-old class and was named best bred and owned on her way to the senior and grand championships.

Earlier in the season, the Lar-Le Stretch Titan daughter earned champion honors at both the county and district 4-H shows for her 18-year-old Montgomery County owner.

In the reserve senior and grand champion slot was David Feidt, exhibiting his winning FFA aged cow. Feidt, of Elizabethville, Dauphin County, bred the VG-87 daughter of the popular Titan, and took reserve champion honors at the district runoffs.

Cathleen Ohlinger earned the senior and grand champion honors in 4-H Holstein competition with her senior two-year-old Mars daughter. Reserve ribbons went to Justin Doeberiener and his four-year-old.

For the fourth time in six years, an Oakes-bred junior yearling topped the state 4-H Holstein junior classes. Ernest R. Oakes III, right, handled his homebred heifer to the junior champion honors, overtaking Michele Freyermuth's junior yearling in the reserve place.

Senior and grand champion Brown Swiss honors went to Kathleen Kopistecki, right, with her winning three-year-old. David Feidt had the reserve, an aged cow entry.

Scott Trimble, picked up the Brown Swiss junior championship, showing Rea-More Sparky Lady. This senior yearling was bred by A.L. Morrison, Jr. of West Alexander.

Jersey

Lisa Chapman of Bradford County finished Monday's Jersey show with a best-bred-and-owned award and the grand championship. Her homebred Windy Acres Saint Darla captured a first-place in the four-year-old class before moving into the championship.

Chapman is an FFA senior at Troy Area High School. She is the daughter of William and Sally Eick, Columbia Cross Roads.

Standing in the reserve champion spot was Janice Hardy's GR TK Earl Lisa, a six-year-old Generator HL Earl daughter bred by Thomas Colpetzer, Salem, Ohio. Janice together with her brothers, James and Jerome, took four first-place awards in the Jersey cow classes. The Hardys are from Petersburg, Huntingdon County.

The Jersey junior champions both came from the senior yearling class. Wilma Jean of Kendale was exhibited to the junior championship by Charles Johnson of Normalville, Fayette County. Denise Martin, a Franklin County 4-H'er, had the reserve champ, Belles Morning Glory.

Ayrshire

Bryan Herring, son of Holstein breeders Harold and Sheila Herring of Farmington, showed a winning Ayrshire in Monday's junior competition. His homebred Bryan's Liberator Gina topped the junior two-year-old class before moving into the grand championship spot of the show.

In the reserve position stood Steven Shetterly's Sycamore Meade Champ's Bessie, the first-place aged cow. This five-year-old Sycamore Meade Hi Champ daughter stood first in her class in last year's state junior show.

Out of the entries in the Ayrshire junior classes, Toll Gate Ayr Hammond Sheena reigned as junior champion for owner Richard Hunter of Washington County. This first-place senior yearling was bred and owned by Hunter

The reserve junior champion was an intermediate yearling shown by Michele Gordon, Peach Bottom. Pinelane Big Business Charm was bred by Warren Schmuck, also of Lancaster County.

Guernsey

Two four-year-old entries battled it out for the Guernsey grand championships, but the top title went to Julie Snider with her Sniders Fayvors Irate. This Housleys Dari Fayvor daughter also won the youth division grand championship at Farm Show last January.

Snider is the 13-year-old daughter of Birch and Cathy Snider, New Enterprise, Bedford County.

Gina Yaple, a Clearfield County 4-H'er, showed her four-year-old Yaple's Taffy for the reserve grand champion ribbon. The Maurana Wis daughter was bred by Terry Hansel, Houtzdale.

Steven Wagner, Quarryville, showed the best-bred-and-owned entry in the junior Guernsey show. Bo Joy Telestar April was the top junior two-year-old.

Another Lancaster County 4-H'er, Janice Garber, received the judge's nod for junior champion. Her fancy Willows Fayette Toshya, bred by brother Gerald, was the first-place intermediate calf.

Jenelle Boyer, York County, exhibited her homebred Sunnybend Shelly King Henry for the reserve junior champion Guernsey honors.

Milking Shorthorn

With a slim number of entries in the Milking Shorthorn show, sister and brother Robin and Greg Gessner easily captured both the grand championships with their homebred entries. Mar-Vi-Nix Kristy-P, Robin's senior two-year-old took the grand and Greg's Mar-Vi-Nic Cherry Blossom earned the reserve.

The animals were reversed in the district FFA show, but a bad foot kept Cherry Blossom from earning the top award on Monday The Gessners are from Springboro, Crawford County. Both Robin, age 17, and Greg, age 16, are FFA exhibitors.

Christine Young of Newville, Cumberland County, showed her homebred Three Springs Stardust for the junior championship. Lawrence County 4-H'er Bridget Whiting claimed the reserve junior championship with Lady Lacey J, also a homebred calf.

The end of summer doesn't mark the end of projects for home gardeners. According to Glen Layton, Delaware State College cooperative extension agricultural agent, fall in an optimum time for many planting and routine maintenance chores. He offers the following calendar as a guide.

October

- Plant Dutch bulbs in groups of the same variety and color for a pleasing mass effect.
- Test soil pH for lime requirements. Lime is needed every three to four years.
- Start compost pile by alternating layers of soil, disease-free plant material, fertilizer and manure.
- Transplant/separate peonies to rejuvenate and increase the number of bushes.
- Collect winter squash, pumpkins and gourds before frost. Cure them at 75 to 80° F for a week, then store at 50 to 60° F until ready to use.

I have many exciting and challenging things happening to me. I have moved to my second host family located in the village of Rollag. My host parents Narve and Mona have a farm with dairy cows, strawberries, kolrot, grass and forest.

A typical day begins with the delicious Norwegian breakfast, a treat in itself. Unlike Americans, Norwegians eat "Smorbror" or open-faced sandwiches for breakfast. Homemade wheat bread is spread with butter and topped with a combination of the following: "geitost" (brown sweet goat cheese), white "cow chese," salami, ham, caviar, smoked salmon, cream cheese, an assortment of homemade jams (cloudberry, strawberry, raspberry or tutibair, like cranberry) and tea or coffee. What a way to start the day! But you must remember, Norway is the home of the smorgasbord.

Now the day really begins. Boots and a raincoat are usually a necessity. Then out to pick strawberries. It's pick rain or shine. Picking is completed by noon and then it's time for a light lunch. Coffee is served along with a variety of homemade breads and snacks. A supply is always on hand for when unexpected company comes.

The afternoon includes a visit to the "buttik" (grocery store) for items we need for dinner or "middag." Then the work begins. If the weather is good, we may fill silo. That is a job. The grass is cut into a dump wagon. They drive the wagon into the barn to the silo. The grass is dumped into the silo. Then we use forks and by hand level out the grass and walk on it to remove the air pockets. The silos are about 20 feet high and 12 feet in diameter and are usually made of wood. They are located inside the barn.

Machinery is very expensive and the farms are not big, so the investment in equipment to do the silo filling would take many years to pay for itself.

We may also spend the day weeding the Kolrot, a vegetable much like the turnip but larger and sweeter. They will grow to the size of 12 or 13 pounds and are fed to the cattle in the winter.

We can also eat them raw or cooked and they are very tasty. The harvesting of Kolrot is done in early September. A machine is used to dig up Kolrot and has an elevator that puts them into a wagon. It was not so long ago they were harvested by hand. But last year six farmers in the village purchased the machine together.

The largest meal of the day is "middag" or dinner. The whole family magically appears from wherever they were working. Boiled potatoes are usually served at this meal. Very often meatcakes (like a spicy hamburger) and a vegetable or lamb, ox or beef in a stew or soup will be served, but the more usual is fish.

Fish is a staple in the Norwegian diet and may be served smoked (raw), boiled (fresh), or fried like fishcakes. It is prepared in a variety of delicious ways in soup, stews and casseroles. My family has many fresh berries and they are the usual dessert at "Middag."

After we have finished the evening milking, we take another coffee break about 7 p.m. Usually we will have cake or some type of open-faced sandwiches.

I have spent an interesting and exciting week at a 4-H Forestry Camp. The camp is a hands-on working experience. The 4-H'ers and I marked trees to be sawed, sawed down trees, stripped branches, and cleared out unwanted and unneeded trees.

The campers were 15 to 19 years old and they came to camp with all their equipment. Chainsaws, wedges, helmet with goggles, ear protection and special clothes are required. By law in Norway, you must wear a helmet, ear protection, goggles and the special clothes for safety reasons. Camp was a fun learning experience.

NEW!... Surge Alert™

Now, milk more consistently and save time, too!

It's simple economics: when you save time, you save money. And when you milk consistently, you save your cows.

That's just what the new Surge ALERT™ is designed to do.

The Surge ALERT is a lighweight end-of-milking signal that uses a unique infrared light beam to look through the milk hose to sense end of milk flow. So there's absolutely nothing in the line itself to create a restriction, fluctuation, or loss of vacuum. And there's no premature removal or shutdown.

And it's precise. Both a flashing light and beeper indicate the end of milking. So operators know exactly when to remove the milker.

That saves time. And to help eliminate the chance of harmful overmilking.

Plus, the Surge ALERT operates off a standard 24 volt pulsator and needs no extra hoses And the built-in handle makes it easy to move from cow to cow.

Making your cows worth more.

The Surge ALERT is one more way we're keeping that commitment . . . to help you come out ahead.

Ladies Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Extension Home Economist

What's a Collectible?

There's no generation gap these days when it comes to collecting. You find young and old and in-between shopping in antiques stores, at flea markets, and at special shows looking for objects that add personality and individuality to a room. "Antiques and collectibles" has become a catch phrase we hear everywhere.

While most of us have at least a foggy notion of what constitutes an antique, collectible is different story. Simply put, a collectible is almost any object, exclusive of an antique, that is old, unusual, unique or just nostalgic.

You name it, someone is collecting it–political thimbles (Can you imagine today's candidates giving out thimbles?), old radios, Depression glass, barbed wire. commemorative spoons and even comic books.

Interested buyers of collectibles should keep these general hints in mind before buying.

- Plan your purchases. Before you select that unique lamp, have a location in mind for your new find.
- If you have young children or exuberant pets, you might choose to buy and display sturdy metal or wooden accessories rather than decorative art glass or other breakables.
- Shop with a tape measure to be sure the old victrola or radio fits the space you had in mind.
- Consider how well the style and color of the object will fit in with present furnishings.
- Select the styles and designs in collectibles that complement your taste and life style. By happy you bought what you bought.

How To File a Warranty Claim

The portable color TV set you've been sitting in front of since you brought it home four months ago has definitely lost its focus. Do you tear your hair out? Cry? Leave home? None of these.

First, locate your sales slip and warranty certificate. It's a good idea to keep all sales receipts and warranties together, for easy retrieval when such emergencies occur.

Then contact the store or dealer who sold you the item. It may need only minor adjustments which can be made right in the store; or the dealer may be authorized by the manufacturer to make in-warranty repairs.

If the dealer can't help you, read your warranty carefully and then write to the address given on the warranty describing the problem and asking about servicing. Some companies provide a toll free hot line for consumer complaints. This also will be described on the warranty.

Suppose the warrantor directs you to your nearest service center authorized to repair that brand and the people there tell you that nothing is wrong or that the malfunction is your fault, so the warranty is void?

If you feel that the manufacturer should honor the warranty, contact the Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel (MACAP). That panel was set up to mediate disputes between consumers and warrantors. It deals with warranty claim problems on television sets, refrigerators, washers and other major appliances.

Don't forget that both the consumer and the warrantor have responsibilities. The warrantor should honor the warranty he offers and the consumer should use the product he has purchased properly and safely.

Breads leadership training workshop offered

NEWARK, Del. – Delaware 4-H is starting the year with a punch–or maybe punch, knead and bake–by recruiting volunteers for leader training in its breads project.

The training session will take place Saturday, Oct. 5, from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in Caesar Rodney High School's home economics room, Camden. It is open to any adult or teen who agrees to lead four to eight meetings in the breads project for an existing club or a new club..

"No previous bread-making skills are needed," says area 4-H agent Joy Sparks. "Adult or teen volunteers who attend the leader training workshop need only want to teach others about making bread, and about its nutritional value. If a volunteer doesn't have an established club, 4-H can help organize a local group of young people who are at least nine years old or in the third grade to participate in the breads project."

With a $2,000 grant from Nabisco Brands, Delaware 4-H has developed five videotapes–"The Science of Bread-Making," "Making Muffins," "Making Biscuits," "Making Yeast Breads" and "Shaping Yeast Breads"–to use in the breads project. Participants in the leader training course will view the tapes, learn how to use them in their own club training, get hands-on experience baking bread, and develop plans for training young people in their own club.

"The advantage of videotapes is that after watching a demonstration on a home VCR, the leader can take club members directly into the kitchen to practice what they've just seen," says Sparks. "Besides learning how to bake bread, the 4-H members will also learn the nutritional role of bread in the daily diet."

Participants in the Oct. 5 leader training workshop should bring a bag lunch and plan to sample the bread they will bake. Preregistration material is available by contacting the 4-H office in Wilmington (571-2284), Newark (451-2509), Dover (736-1448) or Georgetown (856-7303), or by writing: Area 4-H Agent Joy Gooden Sparks, 129 Townsend Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19717-1303.

Maryland youth takes third in regional tractor contest

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – Mark Richards, 17, of Salisbury placed third in a regional FFA tractor operator's contest on Sept. 14 at West Springfield, Mass. The multi-state event was held in conjunction with the sixty-fourth Eastern States Exposition, dubbed as "The Big E–New England's Great State Fair."

A senior at Wicomico senior high school in Salisbury, Mark earned the right to represent Maryland at West Springfield by winning the FFA tractor operators contest during the Maryland State Fair in Timonium.

Robert Cooksey, 17, of Bel Air, a student at Harford vocational-technical high school near Churchville, was runnerup in the state FFA tractor competition. He won the state 4-H tractor operators contest in 1984.

Harry Powell, 16, of Newark, a junior at Worcester vocational center, placed third in this year's state fair FFA tractor competition. The event was held jointly with the state 4-H tractor operators contest for the first time.

The University of Maryland's agricultural engineering department presented metal Slow-Moving Vehicle emblems, ready for mounting, to all participants in the two contests. Designed as a nationwide highway safety warning for farm equipment, the triangular SMV emblems feature a fluorescent orange center surrounded by a reflective red border.

Longtime rivals share top Lampeter beef honors

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LAMPETER — Brian Hess edged out longtime rival Michelle Dean to claim the top spot in the Lampeter Fair Baby Beef competition Wednesday night.

The two, who have been competitors for eight years, exchanged top places in the 4-H and FFA shows, with Brian claiming the grand championship in the FFA show and Michelle taking the reserve champion. But in the 4-H show that followed, they reversed roles and Michelle walked away with the champion while Brian took home the reserve.

However, in the end, show judge Ch[illegible] Fairbairn, Chester County [illegible]sion livestock agent, placed [illegible]s 1,180 pound Angus-Chianina entry at the top

The son of Abram H and Mary Jane Hess, Conestoga R1, Brian said Alfalfa, who sports a pointy tuft of hair on top his head, was named after a cartoon character on the "Little Rascals" program. He purchased the steer, which was bred in West Virginia, at the Keystone Livestock Sale.

The 18-year-old Penn Manor graduate lives at home on the family's 70-acre farm, Bacon Acres, where he helps with the farrow to finish hog operation.

Michelle claimed the reserve championship with a 1,100 pound Angus-Chianina steer purchased from P T. McIntyre and Sons, Inc of Virginia.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dean, Strasburg R1, Michelle has had two Lampeter Fair champions in her 11 years of showing.

The Penn State University freshman said she was "really pleased," with her placings in this show and plans to take her steer to the Keystone Livestock Exposition later this year.

Durocs in market hog winners circle

BY JACK HUBLEY

LAMPETER — What does Manheim swine breeder Mark Nestleroth look for in a modern market hog? A well-muscled pig that's youthful, clean and sound. Hog fanciers attending the Lampeter Fair's market hog show found out exactly what Nestleroth meant by that description when the show judge singled out 14-year-old Andy Groff's purebred Duroc for grand champion honors on Wednesday.

The son of John and Mary Sue Groff, the Lampeter-Strasburg ninth-grader bought his blue-ribbon pig from Duroc breeder Larry Arnold of Womelsdorf.

"I like a hog with some Duroc in it," said Groff, noting that he looks for a pig with plenty of length and big hams when picking his show prospects. Groff also took a first in one of the show's three medium-weight classes with another one of the four hogs he campaigned at Lampeter.

At 235 pounds, Groff's hog was comfortably within the 225-to-245-pound range that the FFA'er feels is the ideal show weight.

And if his showring history is any indication, Groff's instincts aren't too far from dead-center. His other victories have included a grand champion rosette at this year's FFA swine roundup, and a reserve champion placing in last year's 4-H roundup.

At reserve was Dannel Hess, 17, daughter of Larry and Pat Hess, Marticville. Another showring veteran, this was the second Lampeter reserve championship for the Penn Manor senior.

Hess's 245-pound Duroc-Hampshire cross was bred by Millersville swine breeder Cliff Charles.

Show results to the top three placings in each class are listed below.

Martin Suffolk ewe lamb tops market show

BY JACK HUBLEY

LAMPETER — With two Lancaster County fairs running simultaneously this week, things got a little confusing for the John and Marilyn Martin family of East Earl.

Their sons Jeff and Doug knew they wanted to exhibit sheep at both the Lampeter and Ephrata Fairs, but deciding which sheep went to which fair wasn't easy.

In the end, campaigning their home-raised Suffolk ewe lamb at Lampeter proved to be the right choice when judge Bill MacCauley, a Suffolk breeder from Atglen, gave the 120-pound lamb the nod for grand champion market lamb honors.

"We didn't know where to put her," said Jeff Martin, the lamb's exhibitor, noting that the lamb would have been competitive in the market or breeding classes at either Lampeter or Ephrata. But when the ewe finally went all the way, the family knew they'd made the right choice. "We couldn't have done better," smiled Jeff, a ninth-grader at Garden Spot High School.

After exhibiting 13 sheep in the Lampeter show, the Martins headed for their 14-head show string in Ephrata where Jeff showed the grand champion ram over all breeds.

Lampeter's reserve champion market lamb was shown by nine-year-old Andrea Mylin, daughter of Jay and Carol Nylin of Manheim. A fourth-grader at Sporting Hill Elementary, Andrea got her 4-H career off to a running start by showing the champion Hampshire ewe in the breeding show, and placing second in the showmanship contest, in addition to campaigning the show's number-two market lamb

Lampeter's sheep show featured 75 entries, 36 of which competed in the market lamb show.

Dorset: Lisa Sadler, 16, of

The four champion exhibitors in Lampeter's breeding sheep competition were: Andrea Mylin, Hampshire; Lisa Sadler, Dorset; Alisa Snavely, Shropshire; Carrie Donches, Suffolk.

Lampeter sheep

Hampshire: Andrea Mylin's home-raised January lamb came out on top. This lamb has competed in four shows against the family's March ewe, and the two are tied, with two show wins each.

Shropshire: Arlisa Snavely, 12, daughter of Jim and Arlene Snavely, Lancaster, showed the champion. Named Lisa, the top Shrop was born on Arlisa's birthday, and is the first lamb that the family has bred.

Suffolk: Carrie Donches, daughter of Susan and Joseph Donches of Manheim, showed the top Suffolk. Her yearling ewe was bred by show judge Bill MacCauley.

Lightweight lamb is "heavyweight" in market show

BY JACK HUBLEY

EPHRATA — Tracy Kauffman started raising sheep four years ago, more or less to fill the family's empty meadow at their home near Reinholds. What started as a casual hobby blossomed into a flock of seven purebred Hampshires, and more work than the Cocalico ninth grader had bargained for.

"But I'm glad I got into it," smiled the daughter of Terry and Candy Kauffman after grabbing an armful of honors at Ephrata's sheep show Wednesday night. In addition to showing the grand champion breeding sheep in a field that included five breeds, Miss Kauffman took reserve honors in the market lamb competition and was named Ephrata's champion showman.

Kauffman's grand champion breeding sheep was the yearling ewe that was named grand champion in last week's Denver Fair. She was purchased from Strawberry Hill Farms in Avondale.

At reserve was Tony Bender, 16, of New Holland, whose second-place overall breeding sheep was named champion ewe in the Suffolk show.

The son of Warren and Joanne Bender, the 11th grader's accomplishments come after only one year of sheep ownership and showring experience. Though he claims no previous agricultural experience, Bender became interested in raising sheep after winning an FFA writing contest last year where the subject of his essay was selecting and caring for lambs.

After showing a market lamb last season, he bought two bred ewes from York County Suffolk breeder Jack Ness, and is currently caring for his flock of six sheep on the farm of neighbor Jonas Martin.

In the market lamb show that followed, Kevin Bollinger's black 98-pound Suffolk wether proved to be anything but a "98-pound weakling" when show judge David Lytle, a New London-area Hampshire breeder, singled out his lightweight division champ for grand champion honors.

(Turn to Page C4)

Pull through the tough spots with a White Farm 4WD.

WHITE FARM EQUIPMENT

When wet spots or other tough areas slow you down, a quick shift into four-wheel drive can make all the difference. And all it takes is a Power Front Axle option on your 2-135, 2-155 or 2-180 Field Boss® tractor.

4WD is not created equal. If you think all Power Front Axles are the same, look again. Most tractors use the engine as part of the structural frame. Adding four wheel drive puts a lot of stress on the engine block. We think too much stress.

It's one reason why every Field Boss has a separate main frame casting. The engine is cradled inside it. Besides adding hundreds of pounds in working weight to the tractor, this separate main frame handles the extra stress of the four wheel drive.

Experience for yourself the quality and value built into our Power Front Axle. Proven with 24 years of on farm use.

WHITE FARM EQUIPMENT

Meet the most fuel-efficient tractor in its class!

The 110 5 hp.* 2-110 Field Boss® tractor teams power, convenience and comfort with the best fuel economy in its class. That's a tough combination to beat!

Record setting efficiency. High performance three-ring pistons, unique intake and exhaust porting and an aspirator-type precleaner improve engine burning and air flow. Part of the reason the 2-110 set new fuel economy records!

Convenience and comfort. Our standard 3x6 Over/Under powershift transmission lets you shift on the-go through three ranges in each of six forward gears. All shift and hydraulic levers are conveniently located on the right hand console.

Come in today and experience for yourself the quality and value built into every 2-110 Field Boss. You'll like what you see.

WHITE FARM EQUIPMENT

The 2-110 Field Boss® tractor features our Over/Under powershift transmission with nine field speeds between 2 and 7 mph.

Ephrata Fair

The son of Walter and Betty Bollinger, the Ephrata High School sophomore not only managed to keep the market lamb title in it s hometown, but also took first place in an earlier on-foot carcass class. This is Bollinger's fourth year in the showring, and his second year as a Cloister FFA member.

Ephrata's market lamb competition is unique among county shows, in that the market lamb classes are designated by breed, as well as weight. The entrant's sire, and/or breed type, determine its class.

Listed below are placings for the breeding sheep and market classes.

Adams Farmers meet Monday

GETTYSBURG — The Adams County Farmers' Association Audit Committee has met in preparation for the Annual Meeting of the ACFA to be held at Cashtown Fire Hall at 6:30 p.m. Monday.

The Nominating Committee will be presenting nominees for a director in each of the county's six districts. Retiring directors are Jeffrey Waybright, Ronald Funt, Arthur Musselman, Harry Hilbert, Alan Zepp and Larry Holtzinger. Policy Development Chairman, John Hess reports ten policies will be up for consideration by the association. "SALT" from Franklin County, will provide the entertainment.

At the regular September Directors' meeting, guests included Roy Cristman discussing Farmers Allied for Responsive and More Effective Representation (FARMER). Mel Eckhaus from PFA discussed 1986 Membership and Mary Grim, Abbottstown explained "Ag In The Classroom" activities. Mrs. Grim and the board of directors concluded that farm tours and farm slide presentations are being done and until the state board of education includes "Ag Education" in the curriculum for elementary students very little more can be done.

Mrs. Horace Waybright, Advisory Council Chairlady announced the creation of a new county advisory council, in the York Springs area, chaired by Timothy Weiser. David Reinecker is discussion leader. Other members are Mr. & Mrs. Gene Sauble and Mr. & Mrs. Paul Guise.

USDA asks weekly meet grading

WASHINGTON – The U.S. Department of Agriculture has proposed changing its rules for issuing federal agricultural product certificates for products graded or certified under meat grading and certification regulations.

The proposal would allow the issuance of weekly agricultural product certificates instead of the current daily and biweekly certificates.

Paul M. Fuller, an official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said the change would reduce certificate preparation time and processing costs, and help to implement the agency's updated data processing program. Fuller also said the change would result in cost savings which would enable the agency to provide more cost-effective service to the meat industry.

Agricultural product certificates are official notices that meat and meat products comply with all federal standards, specifications, and regulations.

FICKES SILO CO. PRESENTS
The NEW Silo-Matic 9200 UNLOADER

SILO UNLOADERS
Silo-Matic®
FEEDING SYSTEMS

The main gathering auger is heavy duty 16" diameter, with 5/16" flighting mounted on a 4" tube. The auger has adjustable front and rear 14 gau. galvanized shields, for maximum capacity. The auger is powered by a 60 lb. gearbox which brings forage to the center for the delivery chain.
To deliver the high volume of forage from the sweep auger to the inside chute, a heavy duty hook chain with hardened cutters is used to convey the forage. The stainless steel top shield is easily removed to adjust the chain if needed. The plate and V pipe keep the delivery chain positioned over the inside chute in the forage.

Susquehanna 4-H Roundup sets record hog prices

HARFORD — Brandon Groves of Tunkhannock found himself in the winners circle recently when judge Eugene Sweigard, Halifax, tapped his steer for champion honors in the Susquehanna County 4-H Roundup at the 128th Harford Fair. Groves' 1170-pound Angus-cross was later sold to Western Sizzlin Steakhouse, Clark Summit, for $1.50 a pound.

At reserve in the beef competition was Kym Bunnell, Fairdale, with a 1200-pound Angus that sold to Peoples National Bank. The average beef price, excluding champions, was 88 cents.

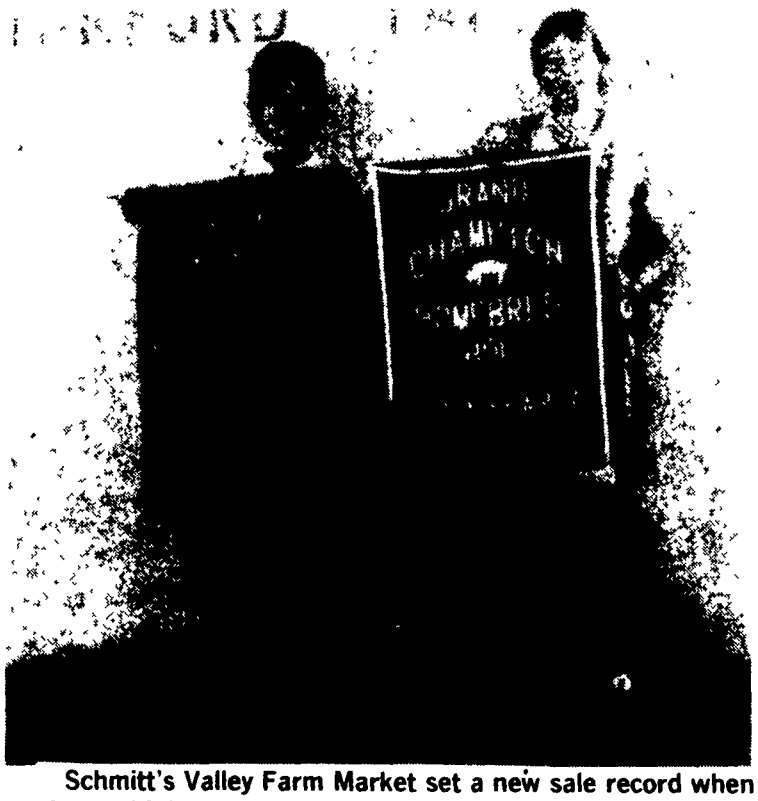
In the market lamb show, Tara Naylor exhibited the grand champion and sold the 121-pound lamb to Farm Credit, Tunkhannock, for $3.65 a pound.

Wyalusing Livestock Sales bought Suzanne Sechrist's 113-pound reserve champion for $2 a pound.

Prices were strong at the hog sale, with both champion and reserve market hogs setting new sale records. Clem Naylor, Franklin Forks, sold his 240-pound grand champion hog for $4.10 per pound to Schmitts's Valley Farm Market. Naylor's entry was also named the show's homebred champ.

The 216-pound reserve champion shown by Noell Sprout went to Robbin's Market, South Montrose, for $3.10 a pound.

The homebred reserve champ was shown by Stacey Sands and purchased by Binghams Restaurant.



Schmitt's Valley Farm Market set a new sale record when they paid $4.10 for Clem Naylor's grand champion market hog.

Farm Credit went home with Tara Naylor's top market lamb.

APHA issues Range Bull certificates

KANSAS CITY, MO — The first Range Bull certificate was recently issued by the American Polled Hereford Association (APHA) in its new Range Bull Registry Program.

The Range Bull concept was designed to help Polled Hereford breeders offer the commercial beef industry bulls which are certified as to ancestry and performance. Under the program, quality bulls conceived by A.I. from non-owned bulls and destined for commercial herd use, can be recorded with the APHA without the A.I. certificate required for full registration.

"This program will fulfill the needs of commercial cattlemen who want a bull of documented genetics and performance but don't need to register progeny from that bull," said Dr. T.D. "Dusty" Rich, APHA president. "Range Bull Registry will help both breeders and buyers as the genetic predictability of more bulls is recorded."

The ancestral pedigree, estimated breeding values and individual performance information of both the bull and his close ancestors are documented on the distinctive Range Bull certificate.

"We believe that every purebred Polled Hereford bull which enters the breeding market should be recorded for both the buyer's and seller's benefit," Rich added. "The Range Bull Registry is a program that should help make this concept a reality. If the calf is good enough to sell as a bull, he is good enough that the breeder should want him recorded, and the buyer should demand it."

Heat for Baby Pigs

We've known for years that temperature needs for sows and baby pigs are not the same. During the first weeks of life, pigs require air temperatures in the 90 to 95 degree range to stay healthy. Sows need room temperatures of 60 to 70 degrees.

If you chill the pigs, they stop growing. When they have to rely on their limited body reserves and the sow's milk supply just to stay warm, nothing is left for growth. But reduced growth rate is a minor problem for the cold pig. Scours and death pose more serious threats.

The challenge for sow comfort is keeping her cool. Overheated sows at farrowing time present a collection of problems–extended farrowing times, more still births and a greater chance of mastitis problems.

And by keeping a sow too warm through lactation, she'll never reach maximum feed intake. That will limit milk production. Studies show that for every 10-degree drop in room temperature from 80 to 60 degrees, sows will consume one more pound of feed each day.

How do we provide two environments in one pen? Here's a list of the methods, the pros, the cons and the costs.

Straw bedding is one of the oldest methods of keeping baby pigs warm. It's cheap. It covers up a lot of ventilation and draft problems. But it requires labor and doesn't work with liquid manure systems Cost per litter–less than five cents per day.

Heat lamps have also been around a while. They do a good job a drying pigs off at farrowing time and keep the pigs warm until weaning. When hung over straw, they're a real hazard. And heat lamps are rather expensive to operate–about 42 cents per day.

Electric infrared heaters are usually safer from the standpoint of fire risk. They cost more than heat lamps initially but most units will serve two litters. Infrared heaters are more rugged so they last longer than heat lamps. They also offer a slight advantage of providing more radiant heat than a heat lamp. Heat lamps, however, may be more convenient to use behind the sow at farrowing. Infrared heaters, at 250 watts per litter, will cost the same to operate as heat lamps–about 42 cents per day.

Electric heat mats usually provide 100-to 150 watts of heat. And they also give the pigs a non-abrasive surface to lie down on. Heat lamps should still be used during the first few days of life, afterwhich the mats can be used successfully. Approximate cost per litter–17 cents per day.

Gas brooders come in two versions, catalytic and flame Neither kind will put out as much radiant energy as electric heaters or heat lamps. The non-radiant energy is simply heat, some of which will rise before it has a chance of warming the pigs.

The gas units, particularly the burner type, should be cleaned often to assure efficient combustion. Poor combustion leads to carbon monoxide release. When you combine that with faulty ventilation, dead pigs can result. At 6000 BTU's per brooder, the operating cost is about five cents per day.

Hover boxes are enclosed boxes comprising about four square feet per litter. They offer an important feature not found with any other heating device--no drafts. Remember that a lot of heat sources, heat lamps in particular, create their own drafts by convection currents they generate.

There are other advantages. No heat source is close to the sow to make her uncomfortable. Room temperatures can be lowered by ten degrees or more–a cost saver that will also increase sow feed consumption. And hover boxes are cheap to heat–with a 100-150 watt bulb the first week and 75 watts thereafter. That averages out to about 17 cents per day.

The disadvantages of the hover boxes include space limitations, since they may crowd either the alley or the sow. Observation of the pigs is also limited and is the main complaint among most producers.

But these boxes are catching on in a lot of operations and I suspect we'll be seeing more of them, since their advantages are in the best interest of the sow and litter. That will save money.

The Northeast Scotch Highland Breeders will sponsor the first Highland cattle show and sale to come to New York's Hudson Valley.

Scotch Highland cattle show scheduled Oct. 26

RHINEBECK, NY — A special showing of purebred Highland cattle, the rugged, gentle-tempered breed that originated in Scotland, will be shown and judged at the Duchess County fairgrounds in Rhinebeck, NY, starting at 1:00 p.m. Oct. 26. The exhibit is sponsored by the Northeast Scotch Highland Breeder's Association.

Scotch Highland cattle originated in the Highlands and West Coastal Islands of Scotland, areas severe in climate and lashed by North Atlantic gales. They ran wild with little attention or care. Only those strains that could adapt to these rigors survived. Thus emerged a breed particularly hardy, thrifty and with exceptional mothering ability, disease resistance and longevity.

Highland cattle were first imported into the United States in the mid-1800's and they quickly adapted to ranges and pastures of American breeders. They require little care in any climate conditions, hot or cold.

Judging the breed at the Rhinebeck show will be Dr. James Welch, professor of Animal Sciences, University of Vermont and a Highland cattle farmer himself. Also William Greene, Cornell University Beef Extension specialist, a leading authority on NY State beef cattle who runs the NY State Bull-Test program at Cornell.

Trimming feed costs

Swine producers trying to cut costs should look at trimming their biggest expense item–feed. Feed costs make up 60 to 70 percent of the price of raising a weaned pig to market weight. Here are some tips on ways to analyze and possibly trim feed costs in your swine program.

Consider buying complete feeds instead of mixing rations on the farm. Producers with few pigs and little specialized equipment or larger operations with hired labor could save by purchasing complete feeds. Keep in mind the price of complete feed includes cost of handling and mixing ingredients, but frees up time for other chores.

Buy only fresh ingredients. Vitamins and other premix nutrients lose their potency when stored. Use supplements within 90 days, 60 days in summer months. Heat and humidity hurt nutrient effectiveness.

Monitor ingredient prices and be aware of alternative feeds. Adjust rations to deliver the most cost-effective formula. Consider buying larger quantities of feed if the price is right, but be prepared to manage the feed to maintain its condition. Soybean meal, for example, should be stored no longer than six months.

Recalibrate portable grinder-mixers and meter-type mills regularly. Formulate rations on a weight, not a volume basis, to keep costs and nutrient content on target.

Finally, take a hard look at extra feed ingredients. Does each one improve feed efficiency or reproductive performance enough to make it cost-effective? Adding a product that costs $5 per ton of feed increases feed costs about $2 per pig annually.

Extra vitamins and minerals don't always benefit the pig and may even hurt performance. Vitamins supplied beyond the pig's requirements will probably go out with the manure, and extra minerals may be toxic to the pig or affect his use of other minerals.

Every $1 per ton increase in feed cost should bring an improvement of about one percent for the additive to be cost effective. That one percent improvement in feed efficiency equals six to eight pounds less feed from weaning to 230 pounds. A $3-per-ton increase in feed costs should cut two days from time to market, for the extra cost to pay, claim swine specialists at Wisconsin and South Dakota State Universities.

ACE takes Polled Hereford honors

KANSAS CITY, MO — A son and daughter of Gold Trophy Sire PRL 930K Hotline 347N were named the grand champion Polled Herefords at the Tennessee Valley A & I Fair.

Held in Knoxville, Tenn., on Sept. 14, the competition featured 228 Polled Hereford cattle.

Judge Dr. Don Boggs of the University of Georgia, Athens, selected Bravo as his senior and grand champion bull. This March 1983 Hotline son has been a strong competitor throughout his show career, and holds the champion titles from the New York State Fair for both 1984 and 1985. His owners are ACE Polled Herefords, Millbrook, N.Y.; Tamsey Farms, Easton, Md.; Marshall Farms, Port Byron, N.Y.; and Eaton Farms, Farmersville Station, N.Y.

ACE was back in the winner's circle with the grand champion female, ACE Liberty Gal 15S. Co-owned by ACE and Murphy Polled Herefords, Farmington, Calif., this January 1984 Hotline daughter came from the senior division to top the 126-head heifer runoff. This was her third major win of the show season, as she was previously named grand champion at the International Futurity in Louisville and the 125th Anniversary SOP Show in Toronto.

The cow-calf division displayed an abundance of maternal performance. Standing in the champion position were JJJ Miss Noel 107H 220 and JJJ Maryjane 67K 511, her March heifer calf. Triple J Farms, Richmond, Va., exhibited the cow, who is a 2-year-old Enforcer 107H daughter, and her calf by Stlbrk Gilead 67K, "The Stick."

SBF Royal Gypsy brought her bull calf by "The Stick" into the winner's circle to claim the reserve cow-calf honors. Gypsy, a 2-year-old daughter of Beartooth Nomad 421N, earned senior champion honors at the 62nd National Polled Hereford Show and the grand champion award at last year's National Western Stock Show. She is owned by Spring Bottom Farm, Fairfield, Pa.; Oak Hill Farm, Salem, Ore., Pleasant Knoll Farm, Frederick, Md.; and Stone Ridge Farm, Livingston Manor, N.Y. Her March bull calf, SBF Royal Gypsy King 8511, is owned by Spring Bottom.

JF Ranch of Greeneville, Tenn., picked up three divisional honors at the show and was also named the premier exhibitor.

ACE Polled Herefords shared ownership on the reserve junior champion bull and reserve calf champion heifer.

The group competition found ACE back in the spotlight twice, with their first place get-of-sire quartet, earned by Hotline progency, and the blue ribbon best-six-head. Blue-Gray Cattle Co., Richmond, Va., led foursome by "The Stick" to first place in the calf get-of-sire runoff.

Pennsylvania bull wins in New York

SYRACUSE, NY — Breeders and onlookers saw a strong display of Angus cattle at this year's New York State Fair Angus Show in Syracuse. The 64 bulls and heifers exhibited were judged by Cliff Orley, Lebanon, Pa.

Genetics Proton, a January 1984, Progression son, was directed into the limelight when he was awarded the grand champion bull banner. First named the junior champion, he is owned by Genetics Unlimited Inc., West Grove, Pa.

The junior calf champion, Park Avenue, followed behind to the reserve grand champion bull spot. This February 1985, Cobble Pond New Yorker son, is owned by Cobble Pond Farm, Millerton, NY, and Fairfield Farms, Lakeville, Conn.

After looking over his female division winners, Orley walked over to the junior champion and slapped Manhattan Gals Pearl as grand champion female. She is a February 1984 daughter of Pine Drive Big Sky, and is owned by Gallaghers Farm Inc., Ghent, New York; Goshen Farm, Paris, Kentucky; and Premier Beef, Howell, Michigan.

Cobble Pond Farm together with Flat Iron Ranch Co., Bonham, Texas, showed the reserve grand champion female, Flat Iron Sharon Duchess. This June 1984, Greenbrae Chairman daughter was first presented the intermediate champion ribbon.

Cobble Pond swept the group competition. They exhibited the get and junior get-of-sire champions with progeny by Greenbrae Chairman, and showed the best six head and best two head. Cobble Pond was also named the premier breeder of the show and Genetics Unlimited Inc. was named the premier exhibitor.

After a four-year wait, during which his progeny will be evaluated, a decision will be made as to whether he enters into regular semen production.

Pen-Col Bonfire is the result of a specially planned mating between highly regarded S-W-D Valiant, +$165, +1219M and +52BF and Old-Quarry Jet Stream Bonny. His dam has production records to 30,573 lbs. of milk. She is classified VG-85 and is sired by Arlinda Jet Stream-Twin.

ABS is the nation's largest A.I. organization and supplies semen to each of the 50 states and to over 65 foreign countries.

Potato council slates meeting

DENVER, CO. – Approximately 450 potato growers and their families will meet at the Inter Continental Hotel in New Orleans, Jan. 8-11, for the 37th Annual Meeting of the National Potato Council.

A full agenda of educational, business and social events has been planned for the potato growers. Scheduled activities range from a River Boat Cruise to an optional golf tournament.

"The Potato Council has some important challenges ahead in 1986," Dan Hall, Executive Director of the National Potato Council, said The Council's Annual Meeting will give growers the opportunity to voice their opinions and have an impact on the farm legislation and federal regulatory policies."

The convention will officially "kick off" on Jan. 8 with an inspirational breakfast/memorial service and will end Jan. 11 with the Annual Awards Banquet.

The NPC convention will again include a trade show featuring industry suppliers and state potato organizations.

Winpower markets pressure washer

The new line of gasoline and electric powered pressure washers offered by Winpower Corp.

NEWTON, IA. – Winpower Corporation is now offering a new line of gasoline and electric powered Powr-Pak–(R) pressure washers President Thomas C. Graham announced recently.

"These five new belt driven models are lightweight units designed to deliver 1,000 to 3,000 lbs. psi at water saving rates of three to five gallons per minute," said Graham.

The cold water pressure washers feature corrosion resistant triplex/ceramic pumps, abrasion resistant brass and stainless steel fittings, fully enclosed cogged dual belt drives, and quick-connect hundred steel nozzles and quick-connect hoses.

Graham said the units are ideal for a variety of applications including washing glass, metal, wood, brick, block and stucco; for cleaning tools, mowers, boats, vehicles, farm and construction equipment; for removing mud, grease, oil, tar, paint, rust, even hardened concrete; for blasting off graffiti, highway and parking lot striping; for removing epoxies and for exposing aggregates. Optional sand and chemical injector kits provide added power–even for underwater projects.

Winpower pressure washers each have 50' of reinforced hose with burst strengths ranging up to 16,000 lbs. psi. Standard features also include removable stainless steel inlet strainer, insulated spray gun with safety lock and 3' rubber handled spray wand, large pneumatic turf-saver tires, and front and rear carry handles. The gasoline powered models are available with 4.6 to 16 hp Briggs and Stratton I/C and Wisconsin Robin engines. Heavy-duty electric motors also are available

Melroe introduces new skid-steer loader

FARGO, ND – The Melroe Company of Fargo, North Dakota, has just released a skid-steer loader model created for the farm market. The Bobcat Farmboy was designed for the farmer who needs a utility machine to handle basic tasks like moving hay, feed and manure.

In light of that need–and considering the depressed farm economy–Melroe engineers were challenged to produce a machine that had the concerns of cost-conscious farmers in mind. The result was a skid-steer loader with a manufacturer's suggest list price of $6250, lower than the published list prices of major skid-steer loaders in the 500- to 700-pound rated class

To achieve the necessary cost savings, the 600-pound rated Farmboy's auxiliary hydraulics and lights have been made available as add-on equipment. And since most farmers don't change attachments frequently, the Bob-Tach quick change attachment system is also an add-on feature. The Farmboy loader's attachment list matches the needs of most farmers· buckets, a utility fork and grapple, all using a pin system for mounting.

Performance has not been sacrificed to build an economical farm loader. The Farmboy is equipped with hydrostatic drive for smooth operation, and is powered by Kohler's new M18-QS two-cylinder, gasoline engine, which offers very good air-cooling capacity and lubrication characteristics.

The Farmboy measures just 36 inches wide and 72 inches tall, small enough to fit through most doorways. Equipped with a bucket, the loader measures just eight feet long for a tight turning radius

Operator safety is another important consideration. Like all Bobcat loaders, the Farmboy is furnished with seat belts and the Seat Bar operator restraint system developed by Melroe. The operator cab has SAE approval for rollover and falling object protection.

Typical uses include hog, dairy and poultry operations, handling hay, feed and manure. Because the Farmboy has been designed for farm use, its warranty is valid only in that market Specific warranty information is available from Bobcat dealers nationwide

The North Dako'a based Melroe Company has been building skid-steer loaders since 1958 and today has 20 different models in its lineup, including skid-steer and articulating loaders, plus two models designed for the forestry market. In addition, Melroe builds a short line of agricultural products including the Spra-Coupe crop sprayer and the Windrow Pickup attachment for combines. Melroe has more than 900 franchised Bobcat loader dealers located in 75 countries worldwide.

The Bobcat Farmboy is ideally suited to hog operations with its small profile and 600-pound rated operating capacity.

Tilt-Tub Processor makes round-bale handling easier

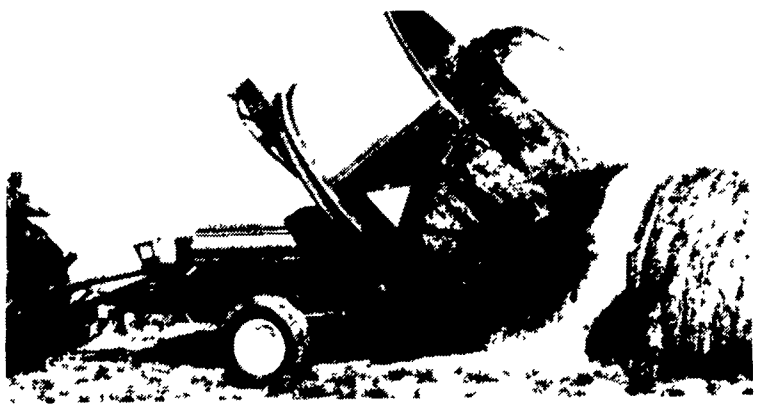
HESSTON, KN – Hesston's revolutionary new Tilt-Tub Bale Processor, the machine that allows one man to pick up, move and feed round bales to hundreds of cattle in minutes, is now being shipped to dealers throughout North America, and models are available for inspection at most local Hesston farm equipment dealers.

"The unique new Tilt-Tub is today's answer for the growing number of farmers and ranchers using round bales," says Bob Granaas, product sales manager. "It is far more versatile and economical to use than other round bale feeding systems. And, it will handle almost all competitive round bales, large or small."

Tub width of the Model BP-20 Bale Processor is seven and one-half feet and container depth is 49 inches. The exclusive 90-degree tilting tub allows quick, easy self-loading. Once loaded, it efficiently processes and feeds bales at an average rate of four to six minutes each. The design of the Tilt-Tub uses the bale's own weight to force the hay into the processor's rotor blades. Changing rotation speed also permits varied lengths for different feeding operations. The Bale Processor requires 540 rpm and can be operated with as small as a 60-horsepower tractor.

"After field-testing this product through three harsh windters, we have proven its value in wet or snowy conditions." Granaas explained. "It has exceptional speed, reliability and flexibility in traditional bunk or range feeding applications. This machine is the way to feed round bales."

"It's so unique" he added, "that we expect many uses will be discovered for it, in addition to its designed applications. It's a must for the user of round bales."



One man can pick up, move and feed round bales to cattle in minutes, with Hesston's new Tilt-Tub Bale Processor.

Baldwin improves line of air filters

A portion of this Baldwin PA-2333 air filter has been cut away and enlarged to show the uniformity in spacing achieved by the new PermalPleat™ element design.

KEARNEY, NB – J.A. Baldwin Manufacturing Company is introducing a new pleat design to improve the performance of their heavy-duty air filter line.

Baldwin Microlite$^{R}$ air filters made with the new PermaPleat™ process, incorporate a series of precisely formed spacers along the length of each outside pleat. These spacers stabilize the pleats from top to bottom to prevent bunching and to equalize air intake over the entire filtering surface.

According to Baldwin, the PermaPleat design eliminates air flow restriction caused by bunching pleats, and increases the filter's overall dust holding capacity.

In all, there are more than 1,700 numbers in Baldwin's line of heavy-duty filters, including more than 340 heavy-duty air filters.

ABS publishes Sire Directory

DEFOREST, WI – To make sound sire selection decisions that keep improving your herd's efficiency, you need up-to-the-minute sire information, according to Doug Dodds, American Breeders Service (ABS) Dairy Product Manager.

"ABS' new 1985-86 Holstein Sire Directory brings all this information together for you in an easy-to-use, easy-to-understand four color format that does just that.

"This handy, 56-page sire reference guide contains the latest USDA proof and HFA type information on our complete '85 lineup," Dodds says.

"And to make comparing sires easier, we've added more new daughter photos, a totally new, revised Genetic Trait Summary (GTS) and helpful how-to-use comments on each bull.

"Getting a closer look at our top sires will also be easier than ever this year," Dodds says. "We've highlighted up front our hot new sires and have included an exciting special update on our proven industry leaders.

"We've also expanded the section on the services ABS offers so you can get a good feel for what your ABS Representative can do to make your A.I. program go more smoothly."

Van Dale develops new silo unloader

LONG LAKE, MN — A lean new silo unloader that's simpler, sturdier and easier to install and service than conventional surface drive or large ring-drive silo unloaders has been introduced by Van Dale.

The new Magna-Matic 360R is rotated by a compact center-drive RollerRing™ utilizing a heavy-duty roller chain between two tough iron castings. This torque-balanced design assures consistent performance, even in loose and frozen materials.

"Thanks to its simplicity of design and compact drive system, the Magna-Matic 360 installs faster and easier, takes up less space in the silo, requires less maintenance and is much easier to service than traditional unloaders," says Dick Wilsey, sales manager.

Other Magna-Matic 360 features include:

— A rugged, precision-balanced 27-inch-diameter steel impeller with greasable ball bearings;

— Two-section impeller housing for easy access and maintenance;

— Top-mounted motor mounts for easy motor removal (3 to 10 hp);

— Dual counter-rotating 7-inch front and 8-inch rear augers to insure fast, steady delivery of materials.

— Counter-rotating wall cleaners;

— Grid-design cover over augers for greater operator safety;

— Space-saving design that allows silo to be filled to top; increases silo capacity by several tons;

Easy mounting to existing single-cable suspension system.

The Kuhn GRS 25 Rake/Tedder can work 10 acres of hay per hour in either raking position (left) or tedding mode (right).

Kuhn unveils rake/tedder

MONROEVILLE — The new Kuhn GRS 25 Rake/Tedder has been engineered for most efficient haymaking.

The GRS 25 converts in a matter of seconds to either a rake or tedder by simple hand adjustments, and without the need for unhitching the machine from the tractor. Working width exceeds 11 feet in both raking and tedding positions. At maximum working speed of seven miles an hour, it is possible to handle 10 acres per hour when raking or tedding. Ecnomical to operate, the GRS 25 requires only 25 H.P. at the PTO.

As a rake, the vertically positioned tines handle crops with extreme care to reduce leaf loss and roping, producing a flat, fluffy windrow. The machine's unique articulated frame produces even raking on turns The side delivery action permits swaths to be doubled up for large capacity harvesting.

As a tedder, the gentle rotating rotors handle delicate crops with a minimum of damage. Because the GRS 25 is offset, two mowed swaths may be tedded or spread at the same time.

Use of hay preservatives rising

NEW HOLLAND – Baler applied hay preservatives are catching on wherever hay is in danger of getting rained on. The preservatives allow baling at higher moisture contents. This lets busy dairymen get going earlier in the day and helps save more feed by reducing leaf shatter and fines losses, says Doug Gammie of Sperry New Holland.

By suppressing mold growth and heating, the preservatives allow hay storage at moisture contents well over 20%. Depending on the bale density, hay without preservatives may need to be as dry as 15% moisture or less for safe no-mold storage without the preservatives, notes Gammie, who is product manager for balers ar Sperry New Holland. The amount of preservative needed usually increases with the higher moisture contents, he adds. At higher moisture contents the material cost becomes a consideration.

There are three general classes of preservatives, says Gammie. The first is the so-called biocide That's anything that literally kills the bacteria, yeasts and molds that would grow in the damp hay in ordinary circumstances

Anhydrous ammonia is an example. It kills molds, bacteria, insects, animals and people. But it is also a useful preservative for low quality hay and crop residue when properly used. It boosts digestibility and protein value. It also presents a problem It's dangerous to handle. Worse, it appears it cannot be used on good hay, either legume or grass. With the good quality stuff, there's sometimes a chemical reaction that produces a toxic substance that is harmful to cows that eat the treated hay and the calves that drink their milk. It seems safe for the poorer quality residues.

Gammie explains there are two other classes of preservatives Organic acids and bacterial cultures.

The organic acids–propionic acid, for example–preserve by pickling the hay to stop mold. Similar materials are used in bread. It's the reason bread has a freshness shelf life of a day or two as a minimum.

The bacterial cultures are less well understood. Gammie adds they might need a narrower range of conditions to be effective. Most of those we know about seem to consist of the bacterium lactobacillus. This is the "good-guy" bacteria that produce lactic (milk) acid. Not many people want to go out on a limb in saying how it works. But it's thought its effectiveness is the result of overwhelming the "bad-guy" bacteria with the good guys before the bad guys can get their act together and spoil the hay. It is thought the lactobacillus culture multiples in a hurry to generate lactic acid. It's the lactic acid that preserves the hay.

Both round and square balers are used on the 125-cow farm of Harold and Mack Mullen in Canisteo, NY. Both balers are equipped with preservative applicators to let them start baling at higher moisture content without risk of mold. The Mullens point out there's a bonus of leaves saved by baling at 22 to 24% moisture.

Gehl's new 760 forage harvester is more machine for your dollars.

Put it up against all other forage harvesters its size and you'll say it's the best buy on the market

This versatile model roars along with tractors as high as 150 hp and purrs along with tractors as low as 60 hp (Gehl has two other models the 1260 for tractors up to 300 hp and the 1060 with a new horsepower rating for maximum 200 hp)

Rugged construction

At Gehl durability is a must And you can see it in the 21" wide cylinder of the 760 Eight tungsten carbide faced knives mounted on a hefty almost three inch shaft help give the 760 a reputation for ruggedness

Economical design

The 760 features a close coupled cylinder and blower with part of the cylinder knives actually running in the blower compartment Result increased efficiency by the elimination of dead spots in material flow through the unit

Simplified maintenance

The 760 can be fitted with an in head hydraulic knife sharpener that allows the cylinder knives to be sharpened right in the field using tractor hydraulics The knife sharpener system can also be used to reface the cutterbar for better cutting and reduced horse power requirements And you save valuable time with features like the simplified single station cutterbar adjustment system which lets you reset the cutter bar from one point on the harvester with a single wrench

In head hydraulic knife sharpener

Two adjustment bolts (A B) for single station cutterbar adjustment

And much more

A new option for the 760 is an overrunning clutch on the drive line which allows the cylinder and blower to free wheel when power is cut Another option bevel extenders which bolt onto the cylinder knives to give a longer cutting bevel improving uniformity of cut in dry corn silage without power consuming screens Row attachments for the 760 include the one row and wide or narrow two row

There you have it Some of the reasons why Gehl's 760 is cost efficient as well as economical But it's only part of the story You can't fully appreciate this machine until you see it for yourself Ask your dealer to demonstrate and price one out for you And discover its full worth Gehl Company West Bend WI 53095

Case adds mechanical front wheel drive tractors

RACINE, WI. — Two new constant traction mechanical front wheel drive (MFD) models are being added to the Case International agricultural tractor line. Models 3394 and 3594 feature 162 and 182 manufacturer's rated PTO horsepower (120kW and 130kW) respectively. With these two new MFD models, Case International now has a full complement of MFD tractors.

Model 3394 replaces the popular 3294 constant traction model introduced in 1983, providing many feature enhancements. These constant traction tractors offer the row crop characteristics of a mechanical front wheel drive tractor with the tractive efficiency of a four-wheel-drive tractor.

With constant traction, the mechanically-driven front drive wheels are permanently connected to the rear main drive wheels. The power to the front drive wheels cannot be disengaged.

This assures that the transmission torque loads are equally distributed to all four wheels, just like a true four-wheel-drive tractor.

A constant traction tractor can match the performance of a comparable horsepower two-wheel-drive tractor, with 30 percent less weight on the main drive wheels. "This can greatly extend the service life of the transmission and final drive components," according to tractor product manager, James Schwaller.

High horsepower constant traction tractors can operate with up to 5,000 pounds less weight on the rear main drive wheels than comparable two-wheel-drive machines. This alleviates soil compaction by reducing ground pressures as much as 25 percent.

Constant traction utilizes the entire working weight of the tractor for effective traction. This increased tractive efficiency occurs when the constant traction machines are properly ballasted, with 40 percent of the total tractor weight distributed on the front drive wheels and 60 percent on the rear drive wheels.

Extensive field test and traction studies show that the constant traction tractor performs equally to a similar horsepower two-wheel-drive tractor with continuous drawbar loads on dry, hard land. However, the constant traction tractor drawbar performance exceeds the two-wheel-drive tractor in soft, wet, sloppy field conditions. "One wet season may pay for the cost of the MFD feature," Schwaller said.

Constant traction tractors also provide engine and transmission braking on all four wheels which is highly desirable when transporting heavy loads.

Tire wear in transport operations is reduced to a minimum because of the special recommended combinations of matched front and rear tires. Extensive field testing reveals that front tires on constant traction tractors do not wear to any greater degree than tires on a conventional MFD tractor with the front wheel drive disconnected in the transport mode.

Additional features on both the 3394 and 3594 are:

- A standard 24-speed transmission--electrically actuated, hydraulically sequenced, with smooth shifts, and closely spaced speed ranges up thru travel speeds.
- The strongest transmission and final drive components ever used in a Case International row crop tractor.
- The first fully pressurized lubrication system offered by Case International.
- Dual torque limiters on the front axle for sure-footed traction in varying soil conditions.
- Front axles adjustable from between 60 to 89 inches ideal for most row crop farming operations.

The model 3594 also features an extra heavy duty four planetary hub on the front-wheel-drive axle for extra load capacity.

- Faster, easier steering–just 3.5 turns lock-to-lock–with a higher capacity hydraulic steering system.
- 116-inch wheelbase for smooth riding.
- A new larger front tire option, 18.4x28 R1.
- A new centered PTO control position provides manual selection of a coast position which allows PTO machines to dissipate high torque loads and inertia during disengagement. This release of energy greatly reduces wear and tear on PTO drive lines and gear boxes of these machines.

Also contributing to optimal use of the tractor is the standard Case Intelligence Center, a digital instrumentation cluster that is the most advanced in the agricultural tractor industry. Coupled with the optional true ground speed sensor, this feature allows a farmer to determine actual ground speed regardless of wheel slip conditions. This allows more precise gear selection and better control of operating functions such as chemical application and planting rates, functions once considered guesswork.

The Case pressure flow compensated (PFC) hydraulic system utilizes both flow and pressure compensation to reduce energy/power consumption. New on these models is a first remote valve priority over the hitch and other remote hydraulic circuits. Hydraulic load check remote valves provide accurate control of multiple hydraulic cylinder operations.

The hitch system has a 9,000-pound lift capacity, a 15 percent increase over previous models. This increased lift accommodates the increased demands of today's soil conservation tillage practices.

Serviceability is enhanced by the addition of transmission and hydraulic system spin-on filters. Other maintenance-enhancing features on the tractors include the exclusive elevating hood and a swing-out battery box.

Major internal transmission components can be serviced from the sides and bottom of the transmission case without removal of the cab. This can significantly reduce service time and expense.

The Case International "Silent Guardian" cab offers the ultimate in operator comfort and convenience. A comfortable air/oil suspension seat, featuring a variety of adjustments, is standard The controlled floating action of the seat isolates the operator from every day rough field conditions. Easy-to-reach temperature controls, an optional new stereo entertainment system with digital tuning and clock display, and extensive sound proofing all contribute to maximum operator efficiency and productivity

The most comprehensive extended warranty coverage in the industry is available on all new Case International tractors. The Tailored Owner Protection System (TOPS) is optional coverage that supplements the basic warranty with 16 different coverage plans that can be tailored to meet the customer's specific needs. TOPS is designed to supplement the basic 12-month or 1500-hour (whichever comes first) warranty.

Case International introduces two new over-100 horsepower mechanical front wheel drive tractors. The Model 3394, rated at 162 PTO horsepower (120 kW), features a standard 24-speed transmission and an adjustable front axle which is ideal for row crop farming.

RUGGED AND RELIABLE...
That's The Way Patz Builds Equipment

Gutter cleaner reliability

The Patz 4-tooth drive sprocket drives every link of the Patz chain. Each sprocket tooth drives each link behind the hook—the link's thickest and strongest point.

Move manure efficiently

Patz gutter cleaner flites handle manure types ranging from packed box stall manure to slurry manure Choose the Patz 2" steel-angled flites or high flites 12" 18" and 24" flite spacing offer more flexibility Heavy steel flites welded to either size of Patz links at an angle prevents binding

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Most successful farmers are successful because they planned to be that way. Most unsuccessful farmers are unsuccessful because they failed to plan anything.

This is becoming more and more true as farming becomes more competitive, more capital intensive, and more technical. In other words the more farming operates like other business enterprises the more difficult it becomes to succeed without a plan of operation.

Lists

For more years than I care to remember, I have been a "list person". For a long time I stayed in the closet on this issue because I felt that most farmers would laugh at my poor memory.

However a statement made by a farmer, who I consider one of the successful ones, made me realize that perhaps more farmers should be making lists. His statement was I confess that I would find it hard to stay organized if I didn't make lists". He went on to explain that he did not include routine chores on the list because these were ingrained into the system.

His lists were the many things that come up on a farm like getting equipment ready, vaccinating calves, painting a building, etc. His wife said he even has rainy day lists--you know, what needs done when we can not work outside?

Let's get back to my lists. I make a weekly list of the extension work that needs to be done. Then I write down priority numbers for each item. Next I put in goal deadlines. Finally I write in absolute deadlines. As I complete an item, I feel a great satisfaction in crossing it off. The weekly list may include one or more items from the previous week or month. Some of the listed items stay on the list for a long time either because they have a low priority or because the absolute deadline is a long way off when I first put them on the list. Occasionally I cross something off the list because it no longer is something that really needs to be done.

Sometimes the list may be likened to the "job jar" that plagues such cartoon characters as Dagwood or Hi of Hi and Lois. It becomes a thing to be avoided. When this happens do this--tear it up and start a new list. By the way, you are the only one who can make effective lists for your operation.

I have tried to help a farmer make such a list many times. They usually end up in disaster because the farmer spends more time trying to go around the list, or rationalizing not using the list, or arguing with the items or their priorities than in carrying out the jobs listed. I can find no real fault with this because I would be just as obstinate if someone made up a list for me.

When to Make the List

A list is more apt to be used if you make or revise it on a regular basis, such as weekly. You can add to the list at any time. Many times I find that there is something that should be done that is not on the list. I just add it to the list--if it is more important than items already on the list, no problem, I give it a higher priority number. What happens when the list becomes longer than the days alloted? Revise it according to your priorities of the importance of listed jobs. But this is one of the strong arguments for lists--I do not run into the jam up of jobs as much when I have lists as without. Furthermore when I do run into that inevitable jam, I do have priorities which I can revise and/or use.

Example

Let me give you an example of a list a farmer could make.

| Item | Priority | Goal | Absolute | Reason |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Paint Hutches | 2 | 10 1 | 10 20 | Weather Silage |
| Clean Calf Barn | 1 | 10 5 | 10 5 | New calves coming in |
| Whitewash | 3 | 10 10 | 11 1 | Inspection period |
| Repair Hay Rack | 2 | 9 25 | 10 5 | Waste |
| Vaccinate Calves | 1 | 9 20 | 10 1 | Vet due herd check |
| Repair Porch | 1 | 9 30 | 9 30 | Anniversary personal |

If any of you--especially you farm women--already make lists that are of help to you in organized and planning, I would appreciate your ideas or comments on how you use them. I think we should be using this concept in our financial management clinics. Perhaps if I get enough response, I could develop a list idea mimeo or publication.

ABS selects Mun-Cre bull

DEFOREST, Wis. – A young Holstein bull, Mun-Cre March, bred by Lester Poust of Muncy, has been selected by American Breeders Service to enter its Progeny Testing Program.

He has been moved to that company's facilities at DeForest, Wis., where he will join approximately 200 other bulls being tested this year. During testing, Mun-Cre March will be mated to 700 cows in herds associated with the ABS testing program from all across the United States. After a four-year wait, during which his progeny will be evaluated, a decision will be made as to whether he enters into regular semen production.

Mun-Cre March is the result of a specially planned mating between the highly regarded Crescentmead Chief Stewart, +$118, +653M and +45BF and Mun-Cre Valiant Mandee. His dam has production records to 24,074 lbs. of milk. She is classified GP-82 and is sired by S-W-D Valiant.

ABS is the nation's largest A I. organization and supplies semen to each of the 50 states and to over 65 foreign countries

USDA proposes changes in brucellosis regulations

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has proposed revisions in its regulations to prevent interstate spread of the cattle disease brucellosis, a U.S. Department of Agriculture official announced today.

"The proposal is for a general reorganization of certain rules that would improve consistency and ease of reference of federal brucellosis regulations," said Bert W. Hawkins, administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

Brucellosis, sometimes called Bang's disease, causes reduced fertility and lower milk yields in infected cattle.

Federal regulations impose various requirements and restrictions on the interstate shipment of cattle to prevent artificial spread of the disease. As part of a nationwide effort to control and eradicate brucellosis, USDA rates states and areas "class free" or class A, B or C, depending on the rates of infection in cattle in those states and areas.

"The main change of this proposal would require vaccination of certain cattle moving into or out of class B or C states or areas," said Hawkins. "State regulations already enforce these vaccination requirements; this change would make them enforceable under federal regulations as well."

Under the change, female dairy cattle born after Jan. 1, 1984, and four months of age or older would have to be vaccinated for brucellosis to move into or out of class B states and areas. Class B states and areas are those where a moderate incidence and risk of brucellosis exists.

Also, female cattle of either dairy or beef varieties born after Jan. 1, 1984, and four months of age or older would have to be vaccinated to move into or out of class C states and areas. Class C states and areas are those where a high incidence and risk of brucellosis exists.

The proposal would not require vaccination of these categories of cattle if they were moved directly to slaughter or to a quarantined feedlot in class B or C states or areas.

Hawkins said these and other changes of the proposal were recommended to USDA by the U.S. Animal Health Association, whose members represent major segments of the livestock industry as well as state and federal animal health agencies.

The proposal has been published in the Federal Register. Comments on the proposal may be sent by Nov. 11 to Thomas O. Gessel, Regulatory Coordination Staff, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, USDA, Room 728 Federal Building, Hyattsville, Md. 20782.

Farm Talk

by

Jerry Webb

Current low farmland prices are causing some folks to worry that foreigners are buying up large parcels of land at bargain prices - almost stealing the birthright of some American farmers who have fallen on hard times.

There is no question that land values are down - as much as 25% in the last year - and that those people with money, foreign or otherwise are finding some bargain farms. But there is no particular rush on the part of the non-Americans to buy American farms. Those who do purchase farms are duly noted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Under existing laws all foreigners who buy farmland must report it through country Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) offices.

The intent of the regulations is to require all aliens who buy more than one acre of U.S. farmland, or buy a plot of land from which $1000 worth of farm produce is sold, to report those holdings.

The Department of Agriculture is serious about this new reporting procedure, since the penalty can be as much as 25 percent of the assessed value of the land not reported.

The Department considers any financial interest in agricultural land as ownership. That means arrangements such as partnerships, trusts, or shares in a corporation that owns farmland.

For purposes of reporting, USDA considers farmland as any tract of more than one acre now in agricultural, forestry, or timber production. In general that does not include a small garden plot that would be part of a rural residence.

Not too many years ago the Washington agricultural community realized that we didn't have much of an idea about who owned U.S. farmland. There was a kind of uneasy feeling that a lot of foreigners were investing in land, but no one seemed to be sure how much or where it was located.

So rules were set up requiring those foreigners who already owned land to report it and those who buy in the future to report within 90 days of purchase. Theoretically that pins down all farmland owned by foreigners.

With the complicated arrangements that some foreign buyers use it may be most difficult to ferret out who actually owns a piece of land. But theoretically a foreigner who owns shares of a U.S. corporation that owns farmland, msut report that interest. Failure to do so carries a heavy penalty.

The Department has made it rather easy for foreign landowners to report their dealings. Forms are available in county ASCS offices located in approximately 2700 counties in all 50 states and Puerto Rico. Also, the reporting can be done by someone other than the actual owner. For example, real estate agents, farm managers, banks, holding companies, and other institutions can report ownership on behalf of their foreign clients.

The USDA rules make no effort to control purchase by foreign investors. They merely pin down who's doing the buying. That won't satisfy the complaint of many U.S. farmers who feel that some of our best land is already in the hands of aliens and that nothing is really being done to stop further buying.

Beyond the undesirable aspects of absentee ownership, many farmers are downright concerned over the matter of who may eventually control U.S. food production. And although the number of acres now owned by foreigners is quite small it still adds up to a lot of land.

Reporting who owns the farms is a first step toward a mechanism that might eventually control, or maybe even eliminate farmland purchases by aliens. Considering that this great nation's farmland was for the most part brought under the plow by foreign farmers, it seems rather sad to tell aliens they can no longer enter our agricultural society. But there are many compelling reasons for limiting the scope of foreign investments in U.S. farmland.

Many states have already initiated laws aimed at controlling foreign land buying — although some aren't very workable. Other states are giving it serious consideration.

Some U.S. farmers applaud this Agriculture Department reporting procedure as a first step in a program that will come to grips with what they consider to be a serious deficiency in our farmland ownership policy.

The Dairy Business

By Newton Bair

Bread and Milk, For Body and Soul

This might sound like it's going to be a sermon. It is not really intended to be, but if it turns out that way, so be it.

County agents and Extension home economists devote their lives to making it easier for farmers and their families to learn about and use modern technology in their business. They have done their job so well that food production in the United States has literally gone through the roof. The result is that Americans are the best fed, and the cheapest fed, people on earth. And it has been accomplished with less than three percent of the total population producing the food.

Unfortunately, the same result has not been achieved in the rest of the world, except in a few western European countries. Two thirds of the world's population endure chronic hunger or starvation. The daily press never lets us forget that, but somehow the real impact is lost on us when we read about those starving people while we are eating our third helping of meat and potatoes.

While working on Andros Island in the Caribbean in 1976-78, I had a premonition of why our kind of Extension does not produce the same results in other countries as it does here.

The government of the Bahamas had established a so-called Extension Service. It was manned by local political appointees whose only purpose in life was to get hold of any free handouts available, and wield their influence on the rural people to support the party in power. If indeed they ever acquired any knowledge or information that might be useful to other people, it was kept a closely guarded secret!

As with most lower echelon political hacks, they were for the most part pretty ignorant themselves, and in no position to be helpful. Their very attitude was completely opposite to that displayed by most Extension workers in this country.

Of course, many poorer countries are simply lacking in well trained personnel to do the job. So, as is often the case, ignorance begets ignorance. Very often, it is the skilled and highly trained people that we send there that is their only connection with the modern world. They are often hampered by the political hacks that demand their share of everything our people offer to the common farmers who could benefit. People are usually willing and ready to learn new things, if left alone by their local politicians.

The New Missions

The Mennonite Central Committee of Akron is in the process of establishing a mission program on Andros. It is intended to be not only a spiritual mission, but is also designed to give the people what they need even more, some expert guidance in modern technology, marketing, and cooperation between the people and the government officials. It is a very worthwhile undertaking, and they are to be commended for it.

But they face the same kind of obstacles that we had to surmount in 1978, when the Bahamas Project was turned over from Penn State to the Bahamian government. When the American money was all spent, the politicians in Nassau forgot the common people in the hinterlands. They were all primed and trained to produce, but face failure because they can't move the produce to market efficiently. They lack the support of dependable transportation systems, good telecommunications, and the understanding and compassion of the politicians.

Our heart goes out to people who honestly try to be productive, whether it is growing food or aiding in the harvest of nature's provisions, even in the harvest of the human spirit. There are many American farmers, as well as those overseas, who need the kind of support that will enable them to not only feed their families, but do it on a continuing basis that will assure them some financial security.

Humanity deserves support and uplift for the spirit as well as the body. But I doubt that many souls are saved on an empty stomach and a flat pocketbook.

NFO head says imports are 'killing' pork producers

WASHINGTON — In an emergency meeting with Agriculture Secretary John Block, members of the National Farmers Union Executive Committee said restoring income and profit to family agriculture is urgently needed to prevent the collapse of the farm and rural economy. The Farmers Union leaders cited the threat to the nation's cooperative Farm Credit System and the projected $10 billion reduction in farm income in 1985 with continued declines in 1986 and 1987 as evidence of the need for a better 1985 Farm Bill.

"Actual collapse of the rural economy is not an exaggeration of the possible results of current farm policy direction," they said. "Efforts on behalf of regional banks and other financial institutions to withdraw from rural communities is growing evidence that there will be even greater pain in rural America in the future."

Reappraisal of budget restrictions on the 1985 Farm Bill must be undertaken, Block told the committee members. He acknowledged that farm income and the resulting depression in rural communities is more severe than the administration earlier anticipated.

Restoration of strength to the Farm Credit System and development of overseas markets for American commodities must be given equal consideration, the NFU Executive Committee members stressed, but they said those issues will require more time than the economic plight of farmers can withstand.

The NFU leaders met with Block during an intensive three-day lobbying effort that included nearly 350 NFU members from 18 states to stress the importance of farm income. Participants in that effort paid personal visits to every member of Congress to ask for improvements to the 1985 Farm Bill. In addition, members of the NFU Executive Committee met with House Agriculture Committee Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, and a delegation of North Dakota farmers, rural business people and bankers met with House Speaker Tip O'Neill, D-Mass.

Members of the NFU Executive Committee are: Chairman Harold Dodd, Illinois; Vice Chairman Leland Mulder, Wisconsin; Jack Kelsey, Oklahoma; Leland Swenson, South Dakota; Milton Thomas, Arkansas; Harold Wright, Indiana; Willis Eken, Minnesota; NFU Vice President Stanley Moore, North Dakota; (all are presidents of their respective state Farmers Union) and NFU President Cy Carpenter.

Dairy specialist offers production guides for progressive operation

NEWARK, Del. – Net income, return-over-feed costs, law of diminishing returns, milk production average, estimated transmittancy index per cow–these are just a few of the indicators of success or failure in the dairy business. How can today's dairy farmer tell whether an operation is going forward and not backward, before it shows up on the bottom line?

"A number of parameters can be used like a barometer to analyze herd trends," says University of Delaware extension dairy specialist Dr. George Haenlein, "I've used these guidelines extensively to change our University of Delaware Holstein herd from a deficit operation to one that's been out of the red ink for more than two decades. In 1958 we averaged 8,000 pounds of milk per cow, but our average output today is more than 18,000 pounds per cow."

Haenlein's production parameters fall into four categories: reproduction, feeding, genetics and disease control.

To evaluate herd reproduction trends he relies heavily on calving intervals. "My goal," says the specialist, "is 12.5 months per cow per year. Any cows over 13.5 months receive special attention–better estrus detection, bulls with better conception records, veterinary treatment for repeat breeding."

Another tool which can be used to analyze and improve reproductive performance is a record of the number of days open. "Less than 10 percent of the herd should be open more than 150 days," Haenlein says. "Cows should average no more than 75 days to first service, and no more than 15 percent of the herd should be more than 90 days. Of course, the goal is 42 to 75 days after calving."

Producers should also try for conception at the first service. Cows with more than two services require a change of bull, as well as veterinary attention. "After two services to apparently normal cows, I choose a bull by his conception record, not his genetic merit," Haenlein says.

In evaluating a cow's reproductive performance, he also looks at the interval between successive heats, which should be less than 25 days. Longer intervals indicate heat detection problems, or even early embryo losses.

Reproduction problems must receive top attention, but the culling rate in a good dairy herd should be less than 20 percent. If heifers have their first calves at much over 24 months of age, there's a reproductive problem in the replacement herd and probably wrong feeding.

Feeding parameters relate more to net income than any other factors in a dairy operation, Haenlein says. "Half of all milk production costs are for feed. If feed costs exceed $400 per cow per year, pencil-sharpening for alternative feed sources is very much needed."

The feeding index from DHIA records should not differ much from 95 to 105 percent, the specialist says. Various combinations of silage, hay and grain are profitable on different farms, but if the herd average fat test for Holsteins is below 3.5 percent, something is drastically wrong in the forage feeding program. Cows need fiber–mostly from forages–and a low fat test indicates a serious deficiency in fiber content and length, which is difficult and expensive to correct with chemical supplements.

As for genetic parameters, information is increasingly available on cows, their dams, sires, newborn calves and even the unborn calves in pregnant cows. "Too few dairy farmers take advantage of this information, though it's now easily and cheaply available thanks to the computer age," Haenlein says.

"Last year more than half did not use the genetic values of 50 percent of the pedigrees of their cows." Only a quarter of all U.S. dairy farmers identified the service sires of their cows.

"It seems to me that using a cow index and sire proofs should be routine, especially since information on genetic differences among cows, their sires and dams is so readily available," the specialist says.

Finally, dairy producers who want to see a profitable bottom line should consider the disease parameters which indicate limitations on performance.

These include the percent calves born, weaned, and raised. This should be no less than 95 percent–an average more easily obtained since the wide adoption of calf hutches on many farms.

According to Haenlein, udder and mastitis problems are best monitored by routine somatic cell tests, which should be well below 1 million in tank and cow tests–preterably near 200,000 per milliliter.

"Many other factors besides these four can indicate trends in cash flow and debt service," the specialist says, "but most relate ultimately to reproduction, feeding, genetics and disease control."

Survival and profit on a dairy farm depend on how well cows are bred and rebred, and how much quality milk is produced for the dollars spent on quality feed.

USDA finds bacteria that 'eat' pesticides

WASHINGTON – Genes in two soil bacteria have been found to help speed the breakdown of pesticides, microbiologist Jeffrey S. Karns of the U.S. Department of Agriculture said.

"We have identified genes that cause enzymes to degrade certain pesticides," said Karns of USDA's Agricultural Research Service. "Now, we are cloning the genes so that the bacteria make a lot more enzymes for better toxic waste disposal, especially on farms."

Agency research on pesticide-degrading bacteria is aimed toward an environmentally-sound way to dispose of pesticides, Karns said at the annual meeting of the American Chemical Society in Chicago.

One of the bacteria in Karns' studies, Achromobacter, fully degrades carbofuran, a pesticide for control of corn rootworm and other crop insects, in a matter of hours. Another, Flavobacterium, partially degrades coumaphos, used to kill insect pests of livestock, in about 36 hours. Complete degradation takes another day of treatment using ultra-violet light and ozone.

"These are potent insecticides. The bacteria can substantially reduce their presence on farms by degrading them quickly, before they can seep into the soil," Karns said.

Significant breakdown of most insecticides, including carbofuran and coumaphos, he said, takes from several weeks to up to a year in a farm soil pit.

Farmers commonly dispose of excess pesticides from spray tanks into soil pits that are lined with concrete or plastic. Disposal depends on microbes in the pits to at least partially degrade the wastes. However, the process is slow, he said, and leaking pits can allow seeping liquids to pollute ground water.

Karns said he and colleagues at the research agency's Pesticide Degradation Laboratory in Beltsville, Md., will continue to search for other pesticide eating bacteria that can be genetically-engineered to hasten the decomposing of pesticides.

Karns uses a DNA-cloning technique to isolate the genes from the bacteria. He first inserts the enzyme-making genes into plasmids which are free-floating, replicating circles of DNA in bacteria. Then, he chemically cuts the plasmid, splices in the gene he wants to study, and tests the new gene for the ability to degrade.

Sire Power acquires Thompson bull

TUNKHANNOCK – A young Holstein bull bred by Harry E. Thompson, Newtown, was recently selected to enter the GOLD Sire Development Program at Sire Power, Inc.

Fountain-Farm Queens Choice 1953586 is located at Sire Power Headquarters where he will undergo an intensive herd health program before joining 70 other bulls being sampled this year.

Sire Power, Inc., the oldest and fastest growing A.I. cooperative, maintains high pedigree standards for bulls entering the GOLD Sire Program.

Fountain-Farm Queens Choice 1953586 is sired by Sunny-Craft Chief Spirit, a genetically superior bull with +992M +.09% +53F +$153, Repeatability 93%.

His dam is Fountain-Farm Pete Xmas Queen, EX(90). She was specifically selected because of her outstanding type and production with a top record at 3-6 305 days of 18860M 3.8% 716F, a Cow Index of +958M -.02% +31F +$112. She is sired by Straight-Pine Elevation Pete.

PFU renews lobbying

HARRISBURG – The Pennsylvania Farmers Union is ready to approach the legislators here with the lobbying enthusiasm the group is known for.

The Pennsylvania Farmers Union commends the legislature for its prompt attention to several major agricultural issues.

"We were very pleased to see that the Senate Agriculture Committee has already set up a hearing on the confirmation of Dr. Richard Grubb as Secretary of Agriculture," said PFU President M. James Brown. "This could be the first step in a very productive session for agriculture. We need legislation and programs on a state level which will help keep farmers in business."

The Pennsylvania Farmers Union will continue to monitor the progress of agricultural legislation and utilize all its resources to promote farming issues in the state capital and in Washington, he said.

PROFIT TIPS

ADD ANHYDROUS AMMONIA TO CORN SILAGE

Ammonia is an excellent NPN source for use with Corn Silage. The NPN protein generated will cost you about 6½¢ per pound of protein. The addition of ammonia will NOT increase the nitrate level of finished silage. Some of the advantages are:

- Feeds well to BEEF or DAIRY
- Has excellent palatability
- Greatly reduces feed costs.
- OK in upright or bunker silos
- Produces milk or beef efficiently

- LIME -

We offer prompt truck spreading of Martin's Ag Limestone. Apply now on Alfalfa & Fall Seedings.
